

Farmers Achieving Big Victory Keeping War Engines Going

By RALPH MCGILL.

There has just been concluded in Georgia one of the greatest war jobs the state has ever known—part of a great victory by the American farmer—and plans have been laid for another.

In every county in the state men have had special instruction and inspiration to do one of the big jobs that must be done to feed the world. The 159 county meetings have just been completed.

The Triple A (Agricultural Adjustment Act) has concluded its campaign looking toward food increases in 1943 which must outdo the increase of 1942.

Those increases are, themselves, so vast as to be almost unbelievable. Mars always is hungry. Fantastically hungry.

See if he isn't! The other day a ship sailed for Ireland. It was one of several. It was of average size. Some of the food in it was from Georgia.

In it were dried eggs, dried and evaporated milk, cheese, canned and cured pork, lard, flour, vegetables.

From 3,800 Farms.

In that ship was the production of these foods for one whole year from 3,800 average American farms, some of them in Georgia. Dried milk, eggs and cheese use little room.

Almost every day those ships sail. Some to Ireland. Some to Iceland. Some to Australia. Some to other countries where there are soldiers or people we must feed.

There is not much drama apparent in their sailing. But there is if you have a boy in one of those countries who must be fed; and there is if you consider the nations we must feed.

There is, also, if you consider for a moment that the products for a whole year of 3,800 average farms are in one average ship. How long would it take you to walk across 3,800 farms?

The American farms, and Georgia's, have played a notable part in peanuts and other increases. They have done a job. A great job. Increases of 100 and 150 per cent have been scored.

Enormous Amount.

Figures, certified to by the United States Department of Agriculture, are so enormous in their extent as to be almost incredible.

It is estimated that 42,000 acres of land are required to feed the men who build a 35,000-ton battleship in the more than a year and a half it is on the ways.

It is known that 169 acres of flax is required to produce the oil to paint that battleship—once.

Each time such a battleship fires one of its 16-inch guns

Talmadge Plan Rent Control To Wipe Out 99 Signup To Be Counties Bared Started Today

By LAMAR Q. BALL.

Slow starvation is the weapon that Governor Talmadge and his political hatchet man, "Hell-Bent" Edwards, have adopted as the means of killing off 99 counties in Georgia.

A new map has been drawn which leaves only 60 counties on the face of Georgia.

The plot to wipe out the 99 counties is merely being preserved on ice today, in spite of its defeat in 1939, according to Frank A. Dennis, chairman of the committee on preservation of local government.

The ax will be swung when the counties are whipped to their knees through the Talmadge plan of starvation, according to Dennis.

Offered in 1931. Talmadge headquarters is publishing throughout the state a plan devised by Ivan Allen, Atlanta businessman, and a former member of the Governor's staff. The Allen plan was offered in 1931, but in the reprint of the material the year has been obliterated by the Talmadge staff artist.

The Dennis charge accompanied by a photostatic copy of a bill "Hell Bent" Edwards tried to force through the Georgia legislature, shows the Talmadge effort was made in 1939.

"The scheme has not been abandoned," said Dennis. "When Edwards failed to get through his bill in 1939, after he had got it through the committee of which he is chairman, the scheme apparently was shelved. But the next step was taken in 1941 when Talmadge took from the legislature he dominated the power to control every penny of the state's money."

"Starving the Counties." "Talmadge was then in a position to deny the counties including their schools, their health departments and other public services, the money they needed."

"Talmadge and Hell-Bent are starving those counties. They're being whipped to their knees so 'Hell Bent' can swing his hatchet for the kill."

Dennis said "Talmadge poses as the friend of the little counties, but he refuses to help prevent them from starving."

"With nearly $10,000,000 unspent money in the state treasury, according to the auditor's report on July 1, as revealed by Dennis, Talmadge tells the counties and the little communities he's got nothing for them."

"All Talmadge has to suggest to the representatives of the little counties when they beg money from the state, which is rolling in

LARGEST U. S. CONVOY LANDS IN BRITAIN, HEAVILY ARMED

O'Daniel Leads As Nominee in Texas Runoff

DALLAS, Tex., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Wilbert Lee (Pappy) O'Daniel, was assured on the basis of unofficial election returns today of the Texas Democratic nomination for a full-six year term in the United States senate.

But the 12,256 votes by which he was leading James V. Allred to roll up a fourth consecutive election success were short of the "smashing victory" he urged in his campaign to "give me the prestige to get done in Washington the things you want done."

The bulwark of O'Daniel's strength, as four years ago when he turned from selling flour to win a smashing first primary victory for the governorship, was in rural areas.

In those counties with the big and medium sized cities Allred found strength, but when reports from rural boxes began trickling in, O'Daniel took over.

O'Daniel, seeking the nomination in the first runoff of his career, called himself the "common citizens senator," "an old clod-hopper that you've picked up" and sent to Washington. He had in the bureau's last tabulation for the night, 438,872 votes to 428,616 for Allred, a former Roosevelt-appointed federal judge who resigned to make the race. The nomination is tantamount to election.

The compilation of 865,488 votes was from all the state's 254 counties, 167 complete. The election bureau estimated that the total vote cast would be little more than 890,000 and that the final tabulation should show O'Daniel winner by at least 14,000 votes.

Apparently settled were several state races, and the bureau dropped tabulation in these. On the basis of those returns John Lee Smith had defeated Harold Beck for the lieutenant governorship; Beauford Jester was elected to the unexpired term of railroad commissioner over Pierce Brooks, and Jesse James was re-elected state treasurer over W. Gregory Hatcher.

Irish Eyes Center On Sun Helmets From Georgia Camp

By WES GALLAGHER.

WITH THE U. S. ARMY SOMEWHERE IN BRITAIN, Aug. 23.—(AP)—The largest American convoy ever to cross the Atlantic in this war has arrived at many British ports with vast quantities of war materials and crack fighting units obviously eager to "get it over with."

The movement of such a mass of men and material was disclosed tonight and gave sharp emphasis to the prospects of a second front in 1942.

Indians, Filipinos and Chinese were included among the thousands of soldiers, but "plain Brooklyn Irish returning home" predominated.

A large proportion of the convoy was composed of men and material for the American Air Force, which already is active with Fortress bombers blasting the Nazi transportation system with precision bombing.

Many war experts are looking for an "aerial push" by the American Air Force and the RAF designed to soften Germany on the ground and in the air for an eventual invasion.

Melted Into Interior. Despite the size of the convoy, which was unloaded in many ports, both soldiers and munitions melted rapidly into the interior of England and North Ireland, where the invasion armies are training.

The center of Irish eyes among the troops landing in North Ireland were Captain J. W. Cooksey, of Beaumont, Texas, who was pilot in the 25th Pursuit Squadron in the last World War, and Lieutenant J. Brand, of Los Angeles.

They had brought sun helmets which they had used in a Georgia training camp. They probably were the first sun helmets worn in anything-but-tropical land in which they're now based.

During recent months engineers under Major General J. C. H. Lee, chief of supply for American forces in the European theater, have been on a 24-hour-a-day schedule preparing the huge bases, transportation problems and working out plans for the handling of thousands of men and material.

Chinese Drive Upon Potential U. S. Air Base

CHUNGKING, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Pressing hard on the heels of retreating Japanese, the Chinese recaptured Kiangshien and Huangkintu today, thus broadening their hold on the Chekiang-Kiangsi railway to more than 110 miles, the Chinese Central News Agency reported.

Driving eastward, the Chinese crossed the border of its Chekiang province in three columns and engaged the enemy southwest of Kiangshien. After a fierce fight the Japanese withdrew, burning the city as they went.

The Chinese were within 20 miles of Chushien, a potential United States air base which was one of the chief objectives of the Japanese when they began their midsummer campaign in the coastal provinces of central China.

Vanguard Nears Nanchang. At the same time a westward advancing Chinese force, after recapturing Yingtung yesterday, pushed northwestward and took Huangkintu this morning.

Kuangkintu is six miles from Yukiang, which also was recaptured yesterday. The latter place is about 20 miles northwest of Yingtung.

The vanguard of the retreating enemy thus was approaching the southern shores of Poyang Lake and Nanchang, the Japanese base. They were drawing near Yukan and Juihung in that sector.

The dual drives, whose objectives included the recapture of aerial bases within bombing distance of Japan, had given the Chinese control of the middle section of the Chekiang-Kiangsi railway to a depth of over 80 miles.

Railroad Points Taken. Yushan, five miles from the Chekiang border; Yingtung, 70 miles southeast of Nanchang, a main Japanese base in Kiangsi; Kweiki, 10 miles south of Yingtung, and Shangjiao and Kwangfeng, also on the railroad, were in Chinese hands.

Front line dispatches Saturday said large fires were burning inside Kiangshien, indicating the Japanese were preparing to abandon the city, which lies only 20 miles from Chushien. Chushien was one of the principal Japanese objectives in their Chekiang-Kiangsi campaign because it was a potential U. S. bombing base.

A high command communique today said remnants of the Japanese who were driven out of Kweiki and Yingtung Friday retreated towards Tengchiapu on the Chekiang-Kiangsi railway and towards Yukiang on the Kwangsi river.

Yukiang was captured Saturday and the occupation of Tengchiapu was reported to be imminent.

Brazil, Alert for Sneak Attack, Opens Intensive Drive on Spies

Patrols Redoubled On Coastal 'Bulge'

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Searchlights swept the skies over Rio de Janeiro's harbor as protection against surprise attack tonight and police car sirens shrieked as authorities carried out an intensive roundup of spy suspects on Brazil's first day of war.

Great activity marked the preparation of the government for what the people believed would be a long and hard fight with Germany and Italy.

In Rio de Janeiro and other cities civil, military and special police carried out a roundup of persons known to have had dubious association with Axis agents in South America.

Authorities started a search for secret radio transmitters, and announced they had found one in the building of the German embassy, and others elsewhere.

The Brazilian fleet and air force intensified their patrol of the coast in the region of the vital "Natal Bulge," eastern promontory which is only 1,600 miles from Dakar, Africa, and which is a jumping-off place on a route of war supplies from the Western to the Eastern Hemisphere.

Military authorities turned closest attention to French Guiana to the north, a region assuming increasing military importance as the French government at Vichy moves farther on the road toward full collaboration with Germany. French Guiana, it was pointed out, lies directly across the coastal line of communication between Brazil and the United States.

In political quarters a disposition for the closest possible cooperation with the United States, in military and economic matters, was manifested.

In political quarters also the prospect that other South American states might be drawn into the war against the Axis was being studied. The decision of Brazil for a military showdown with the Axis, it was said, is sure to have a profound influence on the attitude of other South American states.

An earlier report to the Soviet army newspaper, Red Star, said the Russians had succeeded in smashing one German attempt to make a new crossing and the German troops were fighting fierce battles with these enemy groups.

Sirens, Bombs Await Blackout Signal Tonight

Sirens will howl, airplanes roar, fire crackers pop, and flour drop as Atlanta's Civilian Defense directors stage a realistic blackout sometime between 9 o'clock and 11 o'clock tonight.

Metropolitan Director George Phillips says he wants the entire procedure to be as near the genuine thing as it is possible.

That is the only way, he pointed out last week, that observers can ascertain if the many defense units in the metropolitan setup are functioning as they should if the enemy should stage a raid here.

Wherever the tiny sacks of flour, to be tossed from the air by the "enemy" raiders land, that will be the signal for the various Civilian Defense units of that area to center at the sight, render first aid to the "wounded," put out "fires" started by the flour bombs, and for the auxiliary police to do their stuff and establish order out of chaos.

Military observers assigned to Civilian Defense will be here to observe the functioning of the vast defense machine, and will be stationed in various territories throughout the vast area, which covers Fulton, DeKalb, Rockdale, Cobb and Henry counties.

Local air raid wardens yesterday were busy in their districts giving final instructions to the Civilian Defense workers so that everything will work smoothly as they go about their varied duties in total darkness.

This will be the first time that the metropolitan area has staged a "raid." One blackout has previously been staged, while two "whiteouts" have been staged during the past two weeks in order that all defense workers could learn their duties first hand.

Britain Sets Up New Caucasus Command

LONDON, Monday, August 24.—(AP)—The war office announced today the formation of an independent Army command in Iraq and Iran under General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson.

This step, which divided the Allied Middle and Near East into three separate commands, was seen as a result of Prime Minister Churchill's recent visit to Egypt, at which time he had a long conference with General Wilson.

The first result of the prime minister's visit was the substitution of General Sir Harold Alexander for General Sir Claude J. E. Auchinleck as commander of the North African front.

The new set-up gives the British an independent command facing in the direction of serious German advances into the Russian Caucasus.

Iraq and Iran formerly were part of General Auchinleck's command, but difficulties of maintaining communications were said to be the reason for establishing an independent command.

The three British commands in the Middle East and East now are: 1. Facing the Japanese on the eastern border of India. 2. Facing the Germans and Italians in Egypt. 3. Facing northward in Iraq and Iran toward the Caucasus where the Germans are advancing.

Chief Air Marshal Sir Arthur William Tedder, with headquarters in Egypt, will retain command of the RAF in all three areas.

Known as "Jumbo." General Wilson, who is 60 years old and who is known as "Jumbo" because of his size, served as right-hand man to General Sir Archibald P. Wavell in the campaign which drove the Italians across Libya in the winter of 1940-41. At that time Churchill spoke of him as "one of our finest tacticians."

21 or 22 Killed In 3 Military Plane Crashes

By The Associated Press.

Army and Navy authorities reported that 21 or 22 men were killed and three others were injured yesterday in unrelated military plane accidents near Bogalusa, La., Las Cruces, N. M., and Dalgren, Va. Names of crew members have not been announced.

The naval plane which carried 10 or 11 men to death was on a routine flight when it crashed two miles north of Dalgren, Va., the Navy Department announced in Washington. Its base and destination were not disclosed.

Seven men were reported killed and two others injured in a parachute jumps when an Army bomber crashed 18 miles west of Las Cruces, N. M. The two injured men were taken to a hospital in El Paso, Tex. Colonel W. B. Hough, commander of Briggs Field, said more details would be available as soon as the field's representative returned from the scene of the accident.

Four men were killed and one injured and wreckage was scattered over a five mile area when a medium Army bomber smashed into five miles southwest of Bogalusa, La., the Harding Field public relations office announced.

Two bodies were found in the twisted wreckage of the plane by ambulance and crash crews and one body was thrown clear.

'Welcome Willkie' Drive by Axis Seen for Turkey

ISTANBUL, Aug. 22.—(Delayed)—(AP)—Neutral diplomatic quarters here said today German allied propaganda agents in Turkey were preparing a "welcome Willkie" campaign in fear of the good impression Wendell L. Willkie might make on his Middle East mission.

The sources said the Axis propagandists, led by the Nazi propaganda office, will try to discredit Willkie "even before he arrives in this part of the world."

Chinese Gratified

By News of Visit

CHUNGKING, Aug. 23.—(AP)—The news of Wendell Willkie's projected visit to the Orient was received with gratification in Chinese political and military circles. "Mr. Willkie's interest in and sympathy for China are well known in all sections of the republic," said the Central News agency.

"It is to be expected his visit will further strengthen Chinese-American relations."

Warm Reception

Expected in Russia

MOSCOW, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Moscow newspapers gave prominent display today to dispatches reporting the forthcoming visit of Wendell Willkie to the Soviet Union and the Orient.

The press confined itself to publication of Tass agency reports from New York, but privately Russians predicted the 1940 Republican presidential nominee would be received warmly in Russia.

As President Roosevelt's personal representative he undoubtedly will be received by the Soviet Union's foremost political leaders. Observers who recalled Willkie's whirlwind trip through bomb-battered Britain early last year, astonishing Englishmen with his energy, wondered how much space he will be able to cover here.

It was predicted that Willkie will be as popular here as he was in England, for Russians admire forthright personalities.

Newspapers quoted various Willkie statements, giving them much more space than is usually accorded to foreigners who are without official standing.

riches, is to reduce the tax exemptions on the homes of the people, which is the same thing as raising their taxes.

"If Talmadge is the friend of the little counties, and the county unit system, why doesn't he do something to save the little counties from starving?" Dennis demanded. "It is because if Talmadge let the starving, suffering little counties have some of the $10,000,000 he has locked up in the state treasury, they would then be strong enough to fight and defeat H. B. Edwards' scheme to destroy them."

"If Talmadge permits the little counties to have some of his huge cash fund, which his state auditor says he had on July 1, he will not be able to retain his dictatorial control over our local governments."

"Power Usurped." Dennis declared: "We residents of the little communities have, allowed local power to be usurped by a centralized one-man state government. We have permitted the state government to grow so rich, and we to become so poor, and weak, and defenseless, that we are today practically at the mercy of a dictator with $10,000,000 at his disposal, which he refuses to give back to the people whose taxes raised that money—the people in the little communities which Talmadge pretends to love."

"Sad to say, it has come to pass that authority is so centralized in the capitol, into the hands of one man, seeking absolute power over all of us, that already even the school teachers, the county welfare workers—any or ALL of them—can be fired by an order from the state capitol in Atlanta—an order one man can issue because he controls, holds in his hands, the power to do with the people's money as he pleases."

Red Cross Girls Pursue Study Of Blackjack

Art of Self-Defense Holds Interest of 154 Women.

By JEANNE OSBORNE.

An apparently innocent little gadget like a blackjack can knock a man out cold even when delivered with a feminine touch, so 154 women in the Red Cross Motor Corps have learned this week in their course on the womanly art of self-defense.

It's all in the technique, not the elbow grease. Just know the right spot in which to strike an assailant, and a neat little tap will put him out of commission for some time to come. Even if he grabs you from behind, give him a surprise slam on the pate, and it is guaranteed he will not trouble you any longer.

Learning this routine now holds the spotlight of interest out at Red Cross headquarters. In fact, some of the ladies are nursing slightly disarranged sinews resulting from the realistic demonstrations of their instructors. But, nevertheless, their enthusiasm has not diminished a trifle.

Everywhere the conversation takes this vein: "But, what I want to find out is how to knock a gun from a man's hand when he's standing behind you."

"Oh, it's easy if you are quick enough and hit him in just the right spot."

Although only three nights' lessons have not given the students a very extensive insight into the mysterious arts of blackjack-wielding and jiu-jitsu, like the tireless workers they are, most of them are planning to get together for a few minutes each day and perfect this new business they have learned. They aim to be prepared for air raids and other emergencies no matter when they occur.

So great is their interest that a picture-taking session out at Red Cross headquarters quickly degenerated into a laboratory demonstration of the course. When the instructor, a member of the auxiliary police force well-schooled by the FBI, showed how to break a hold by a quick jab under the chin, everyone demanded a personal demonstration.

YOU, TOO, CAN BE AN AMAZON—It's not the elbow grease that counts. It's just the technique. If you know how, you can knock an assailant out with a quick tap of the innocent-looking little instrument known as the blackjack. So Red Cross Motor Corps members are finding out in their course on self-defense. Here, Mrs. William Sievers prepares to put her assailant, Mrs. Richard Cotton, out of the "picture"—just for this picture.

The blackjack itself was a revelation to the reporter, who had always mentally pictured it as a cumbersome device somewhat similar to a monkey wrench. Instead, it is an unobtrusive weapon which can dangle from the hand so nonchalantly that no one would notice it. Only about 12 inches long, it has a leather loop by which it can be hung around the wrist. The handle, bound with braided leather, contains a stiff coiled spring which can be mighty quick on the rebound. The business end is a small knob containing a lump of solid lead.

The correct way to clutch the weapon is with the end of the handle lying in the palm of the hand. A quick entwining of the fingers around it, and it is ready and eager for action.

Something new has been added (very little) but you'll like it (a lot!) It's Hedy Lamarr in a LURONG!

sands of troops. These bases now are nearing completion and are able to absorb men and materials at a sharply stepped-up pace.

The Air Force is in a similar position and its striking power can be doubled and redoubled within an extremely short space of time compared to the months of preliminary preparations.

Navajos in Contingent.

Sun-browned, war-whopping American soldiers—with some Navajo Indians among them—were included among the arrivals, which included every branch of the service for the new striking force being assembled under Lieutenant General Dwight B. Eisenhower, commander in chief of American forces in the European theater.

The convoy's arrival, coming almost simultaneously with the visit of Prime Minister Churchill to Moscow and the super-commando raid on Dieppe, was calculated to give Hitler something to worry about.

Among the vessels which have been hauling troops there appeared at one British port for the first time a Liberty ship—a heartening sight to Britons, acutely aware of civilian and military privations which are attributed by their leaders to shipping losses.

"Let's Get It Over." Tank crews filled their machines with gasoline at the dock and drove away ready for action. All went to start fighting with the motto "Let's get it over with."

Army encampments from the eastern seaboard to the great southwest have been represented among recent arrivals.

The smart appearance and well drilled performance in debarking gave added point to Major General Mark Clark's statement that "crack" American units only were being sent to this war front. Clark is commander of all American ground troops in the European theater.

Private Pearce Claude, 22, of Gallup, N. M., a Navajo Indian, declared he and other red-skinned warriors were fine fighters but poor sailors.

Another arrival was Private Max P. Pablada, 34, of Los Angeles, a Filipino, whose mother, father and brother were in a village hundreds of miles north of Manila when the Japanese captured the Philippine capital.

He said he was anxious to "kick the Nazis and then get at the Japs."

Raider Intercepted Off North Ireland

RAF HEADQUARTERS, NORTHERN IRELAND, Aug. 23.—(AP)—A German plane which approached the coast of Northern Ireland where United States troops are in training was intercepted by RAF planes this morning, an RAF announcement said.

The raider was reported damaged and forced to turn back toward the south, whence it came. An earlier announcement that the raider was believed to have been forced down in Eire was cancelled.

British, German Planes Crash in Eire

DUBLIN, Eire, Aug. 23.—(AP)—A British plane crashed at Rathoath, County Meath, 12 miles northwest of Dublin at 9 a. m. today and the badly injured pilot died in a short time.

Half an hour later a German aircraft crashed near Tramore, County Waterford, on the south coast. Four members of the crew including one wounded have been interned.

Brazil Guards Against 'Sneak'

tures of Uruguay, Colombia and Venezuela, which are believed here to be on the verge of war, and on Argentina and Chile which are still maintaining diplomatic relations with the Axis powers. A strong official hint that Uruguay would follow Brazil shortly came when President Baldomir, of Uruguay, informed President Vargas, of Brazil, that Uruguay was ready to carry out the Havana agreement which, he said, "makes the continent a single nation against aggressions of a non-American state." Just when Uruguay would act was not indicated. Argentina's foreign office announced that Argentina's position in the light of Brazil's declaration of war against Germany and Italy would be "fixed officially" tomorrow.

Feeling against fifth column activity in Brazil was high because citizens were convinced it was agents in their midst who communicated with Axis submarines which sank five Brazilian vessels off the coast of Bahia last week. So intense did the hunt for unreliable and suspected persons become that in several communities, especially along the coast, citizens of German and Italian blood were reported to be registering voluntarily at police headquarters to protest innocence, to give information on espionage activities which they disapproved, and to ask for protection against demonstrators. The Spanish ambassador, Raimundo Fernandez Cuesta, made a public denial of published reports that Spanish ships along the coast had betrayed the location of Brazilian vessels to Axis submarine raiders.

A circumstance bringing home to Brazilians the fact that their country is at war was the beginning of practice blackouts. Communities along the country's 5,000 mile coast were the first to extinguish light which provided landmarks and navigation guides for enemy sea and air marauders.

The immediate assignment to both navy and airforce was to keep Brazil's end of communications with the United States and Europe open. That function will increase in importance, it was said, as the south Atlantic is drawn more directly into the conflict.

Many army reservists were being called to service, and security measures were being increased at strategic points. But Brazilians were uncertain yet what else will be required of them. They expected more light on that question after the first meeting of the war cabinet, which had not yet been called. President Getulio Vargas, in the decree declaring a state of belligerency, stated there would be weekly cabinet meetings throughout the war.

Commentators stated today that a precise duplicate of events which drew Brazil into the first World War have involved her in the second. Then as now it was the sinking of Brazilian ships.

Brazil moved toward war slowly this time. As far back as March 23, 1941, Germany attacked a Brazilian vessel, the SS Taubate being bombed and machinegunned near Port Said. Germany on that occasion apologized. But there were no apologies for sinkings which began February 15, this year, with the torpedoing on the SS Buarque off the coast of Virginia.

Up to today 19 Brazilian vessels have been destroyed, and there are unconfirmed reports that in addition two small coastal craft have been sunk within the past few days.

Way Cleared For Defense of Brazil's Hump

United States Seen Ready For Immediate Aid to Southern Neighbor.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Brazil's declaration of war on Germany and Italy cleared the way today for prompt and vigorous measures to secure the defense of the most vulnerable land area on the Atlantic side of the Western Hemisphere—the South American hump only 1,600 miles from Africa.

Ever since the war started, United States military men have pointed to this strategic sector as the one which the Axis forces would attack if ever they were able to consolidate their European and African positions sufficiently to permit direct action against the Americas.

Establishment of adequate protection, therefore, was clearly Brazil's first strategic task, and indications were that a speedy concentration of military strength in that area was contemplated.

"Defending Continent." A statement to that effect came from Brigadier General Amaro Soares Bittencourt, Brazilian military attaché here and the senior delegate to the inter-American defense board. The board will hold its first formal meeting Tuesday with the strategic problems growing out of Brazil's belligerency to the fore.

General Bittencourt said that in defending herself Brazil "is defending the continent" and that to accomplish this "we must concentrate and reunite all our military elements for the defense of the northeast, the strategic point on the bulge of Brazil for invasion by the Axis."

There was no doubt in official quarters that the United States stood ready to aid its ally to any extent required. Already, in fact, this country has given much help to Brazil under lend-lease arrangements, furnishing airplanes, arms and equipment for Brazil's growing army and training aviators for the air force.

U. S. Bases Indicated. Moreover, the fact that American airmen were credited with successful attacks on German submarines operating off the coast of Brazil indicates that some United States forces already are based in that country.

Whatever offensive role Brazil may play in the war, it is believed here, depends primarily on two factors—the size of the force she can raise beyond that needed for defensive purposes and the urgency of requirements for her troops in other theaters of the World War.

The present size of Brazil's army has not been disclosed but is generally estimated at more than 100,000 men with 300,000 active reservists. Last April President Getulio Vargas signed a decree which could have the effect of increasing this force to 1,200,000 men.

Navy Relatively Small. The navy, for the size of the job it has to do, is relatively small, consisting of two recently modernized battleships, 30 and 34 years old, supported by a force of two cruisers, about a dozen destroyers, four submarines, half a dozen torpedo boats and a score or more gunboats, minesweepers and other auxiliaries. A destroyer building program is in progress.

The defensive job before the army and navy is enormous. Brazil covers 3,286,170 square miles—more than half the size of the South American continent and 250,000 square miles larger than continental United States. The coast line is about 4,600 miles long. The population is 46,000,000, so that much of the huge territory is thinly inhabited.

How much of the population would be available for military service is a problem. Brazil's biggest contribution to the cause of the United Nations is almost certain to be in supplying raw materials—a function that already is occupying much of her manpower. Materials furnished by Brazil include bauxite, rubber, beryllium, chrome, diamonds, graphite, mica, quartz, hides, hemp, wool and kapok.

E. W. Melvin Gets Transfer To New Camp

'Small Arms Mechanic' At Fort Mac Becomes Second Lieutenant.

Master Sergeant Ervin W. Melvin, post ordnance, Fort McPherson, has been promoted to second lieutenant, effective yesterday. He will assume his duties at one of the many new Army camps, as yet unassigned.

Sergeant Melvin has been stationed at Fort McPherson for the past year and a half, having entered the Army in 1928, first serving in the cavalry, then transferring for a short shift in the infantry. Feeling that there was more chance for promotion and advancement in ordnance, he asked for his transfer to that branch of service some eight years ago. Sergeant Melvin received his ordnance training at the Erie Proving Grounds, Camp Perry, Ohio.

Known around the post as a "small arms mechanic," Sergeant Melvin has developed to a high art the switching of usable parts from guns no longer in service, assembling them to form an effective piece of fighting equipment. Some time parts from as many as four or five guns are used.

In addition to Sergeant Melvin's ordnance training, his hobby is working with automobile motors.

Portugal Hails 'Noble' Brazil

LISBON, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Premier Antonio de Oliveira Salazar called his cabinet into extraordinary session this evening for the purpose, observers believed, of clarifying Portugal's position in the light of Brazil's declaration of war against the Axis.

The extraordinary session was called as Portugal's president, General Oscar Carmona, sent a warm message of friendship to President Vargas, of Brazil. The message said:

"At the moment of receiving the official communication that Brazil is at war I want to convey to you and to the Brazilian people assurances of my own fraternal feelings as well as those of the Portuguese people, who accompany the noble Brazilian nation with the greatest emotion at this great moment of its history."

The newspaper Diario Lisboa, commenting today on Brazil's declaration of war against Germany and Italy, said "the spirit that ties Portugal to Brazil, unchanged in centuries, will continue unaltered whatever may be the circumstances created by the state of war."

"We realize Brazil's immortal greatness in the course of its destiny and pay our homage to the noble virtues of Brazil at this transcendent hour," the paper said. The Brazilian ambassador, Arujo Jorge, delivered to President Salazar the note informing Portugal of the state of war, and said afterwards he and Salazar had "a long friendly chat."

'Blood, Sweat, Tears' Predicted by Nazis

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts), Aug. 23.—(AP)—Brazil, now that it is in the war, can look forward to only "blood, sweat and tears," the diplomatic correspondent of DNB, official German news service, wrote tonight.

The German view was that there is nothing in store more for South Americans than was vouchsafed for the British people by Prime Minister Churchill when he warned he would require the most extreme sacrifices.

The German agency said Brazil's entry into the war was accomplished by "wire pullers" in Washington. "Consequently one should not attach importance to the pretext made in Rio de Janeiro," DNB continued.

(No direct mention was made of the sinking of Brazilian ships by German submarines.)

Italy regards Brazil's declaration of war against the Axis "with equanimity," it was stated today by a German transocean dispatch from Milan quoting the newspaper Stampa.

Stampa observed that it was "painful and regrettable to see a country which for generations has benefitted from Italian emigrants and which was civilized by them had joined the enemy coalition."

Those Civilian Commissions

Disclosure by the War Department that more than 18,000 civilians with no previous experience as military officers have received Army commissions during the 60 days beginning last June 1 focuses attention on a situation that must be reviewed in all fairness, with due regard to pros and cons, and without rancor. It calls for calmness and sanity, and not merely a dive off the deep end of an emotional outburst.

In this connection, the remarks of Congressman Faddis, of Pennsylvania, were rather ill chosen when he said the United States Army is "getting Mexicanized." A clever phrase, true enough. But is such an expression good taste or good sense when the country south of the border is listed among the United Nations, is one of our allies? Is it in the interest of unity perhaps to alienate an ally for the sake of a catchy line? The gentleman from Pennsylvania needs a little lesson in common courtesy.

As for the number of commissions, Secretary Stimson said "it may be of interest to note that of the total number of appointments . . . approximately 10,000, or 53 per cent, represent doctors and other members of the medical profession who were commissioned in the medical reserve." He also pointed out that many others were appointed to perform administrative duties not requiring military training. So much for that.

What of the remainder? Here it is safe to assume that a good percentage were persons with no more qualification than a jack rabbit. At the same time, it is safe to assume another good percentage were persons with excellent qualifications, despite the fact of not having previous military experience.

The important thing to remember is that the Army is expanding at a rapid rate. There are bound to be instances where favoritism and political influence win the day. There are bound to be injustices when a nation is dealing with overwhelming numbers of men. It is impossible for Uncle Sam to sort all the wheat from the chaff. It simply cannot be done.

The big thing is to win the war. Doesn't it seem a bit petty to gripe about the granting of commissions to large numbers when those numbers after all represent only a small percentage? Is this a time to make mountains out of mole hills? To create disunity and lack of confidence in the government and its leaders?

How about less criticism and scandal-mongering and more work and more faith?

Where Else Would He Be?

The name of Lieutenant Douglas Fairbanks Jr. truly would seem out of place associated with any group other than the United States Rangers.

It was not surprising to find that the former idol of the movies is a member of the tough affiliate of the British Commandos which Wednesday staged a warm-up raid on Dieppe.

Principally because of his movie roles and those of his father, Douglas Fairbanks Sr., the Fairbanks name has come to stand for something as exciting and adventurous as that displayed in the dare-devil striking of the Commandos.

A sword in the hand of Douglas Fairbanks Jr., the film star, was a natural sight. Daring evasion of the enemy in rumble-tumble sorts of ways left audiences thrilled and clamoring for sequels.

He best will be remembered for daring exploits in "The Prisoner of Zenda," "Gunga Din," "Dawn Patrol" and "Parachute Jumper."

Movie roles may have influenced his decision to "get away from it all" and join with the branch made up of westerners, Indians, Golden Glove champions and wrestlers. Only one impatient for action such as the Rangers can provide could spurn a soft desk job for this kind of life.

After Wednesday's raid, it was not immediately known whether Lieutenant Fairbanks participated in the sortie, but chances are if he didn't, his heart was there.

You would expect him there in person, though. His name fits with the Rangers. He wasn't putting on in the movies—he was only acting natural.

Why Hog-Tie President?

Under the wartime code of press censorship the whereabouts or movements of the President cannot be disclosed unless announced by an appropriate authority.

That is a wise ruling. No man in America today is so important to the war effort as the commander-in-chief, President Roosevelt.

It, therefore, comes in exceedingly poor taste when Representative Hartley, Republican member of congress from New Jersey, charges that the wartime censorship is being used as "a cloak of concealment for the political activities of the President."

They have just held a Democratic primary in New York. President Roosevelt backed one candidate for the governorship, Jim Farley another. Farley's man won.

The basis for the Hartley charge was a rumor that the President has recently made several visits to New York. Well, why not? He is a resident and voter in New York. He has served as governor. He is naturally interested in New York state politics. All good citizens are interested in their own state politics.

Mr. Roosevelt had added interest in the gubernatorial race in that he was the accepted sponsor of one candidate.

Would Mr. Hartley expose the President to unnecessary danger by insisting on constant public information as to his whereabouts? On the other hand, would he compel the President never to leave the White House?

Both suggestions are absurd.

Mopping Up

The Navy Department has announced that our forces which attacked and captured three or four important islands in the Solomons are now engaged in "mopping up" the remnants of enemy forces there.

This means that we are firmly established on the islands which were the objectives of our attack. It means that organized resistance by the enemy has ceased and that all yet to be done is to kill or capture a few individual Japanese who probably escaped, after the first attack, in the wild interior. Such remnants of the enemy forces could not do any serious damage but, as snipers, would be irritating.

Whether or not the Japanese will make any attempt in force to retake these Solomon Islands remains to be seen. They may be gathering strength to the north with that purpose in view. Our Navy has expected a new attack by the Japanese navy but so far it has not developed.

Now seems probable we can hold the islands taken. If we do, they will be invaluable both as springboards for further attacks against the Japanese and as protection for our supply routes across the Pacific. With a magnificent harbor and splendid air field facilities, the seized islands are undeniably worth whatever cost us, in losses of ships and men, to take them.

Brazil Calls Bluff

Brazil's hard-boiled reaction to the sinking of her merchant and troop ships by German submarines demonstrates to the Nazis the determination of South American countries in the world struggle.

With the declaration of war against Germany and Italy, Brazil tells her enemies that she really means business. Brazil is no mean ally on the side of the United Nations. Her material resources, her economic strength are great. In size, she is larger than the United States. Her manpower is large, for she has a population of more than 44,000,000. Thus her contribution will be important.

That country long has been a target for German imperialism. From the 1880s on, Germany has concentrated her attention on the richer sections of the great country, and on more than one occasion the United States has been forced to warn Germany against pursuing its evident intentions.

The submarine campaign undoubtedly was designed chiefly to frighten the Brazilian people—it obviously has had an opposite effect. Brazil has called the Axis bluff, and her weight on the side of the United Nations, in raw materials and in ships and as a counterbalance to Argentine Fascism, will be felt.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

POLITICAL SPITE WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Political spite-wind blows Democratic stalwart who had a desire to even an old score will probably result in the Republicans electing their first governor of New York in more than twenty years.

James A. Farley, former postmaster general and past Democratic national chairman, is the party culprit. Still nursing a pet peeve against the President for accepting a third-term nomination and denying him a free run of the White House, Farley insisted on naming his own candidate for governor after quietly lining up a majority of the state convention delegates in his behalf.

Few political observers give the Farley candidate—State Attorney General John J. Bennett Jr.—more than an outside chance to win. Chances are that he will be defeated overwhelmingly.

UNLIKELY TO WIN The reasons are twofold. First, Mr. Bennett is a colorless sort of an individual with an anti-New Deal background, and, second, he has the announced opposition of the American Labor Party, an independent organization which polls upward of 500,000 votes in New York state elections.

On top of this Mr. Bennett will be opposed by the most popular vote-getter the Republicans have been able to produce in the Empire State for a couple of decades—Thomas E. Dewey, the racket-busting district attorney who was the runner-up contender for the Republican presidential nomination two years ago.

Dewey is certain to be the Republican nominee for governor. Four years ago he came within 64,000 votes of defeating Governor Lehman, the incumbent. That was the nearest any Republican has come to the governorship in years.

Under the best of circumstances Dewey would be expected to run any Democrat a close race this year. With the 500,000 votes of the American Labor Party taken away from the Democratic candidate, he should have a walk-away.

Long before the convention met the ALP served notice that it would have none of Mr. Bennett. It announced its intention to put a separate candidate in the field if he won.

REFUSED COMPROMISE Realizing that Farley had tied up the necessary votes and that he had been endorsed, Mr. Roosevelt made a last-minute effort to save the situation for the party by suggesting a compromise. But Farley refused to be moved. As the situation stands, he has won the empty honor of naming a candidate who will probably be defeated in November.

Selection of Mr. Bennett over Senator Mead, who had been endorsed also by Governor Lehman, Tammy Hall Leader Kennedy and a host of others, is being hailed generally as a personal victory of Mr. Farley over the President. That is true in a way, but the circumstances need explaining.

Farley, drawing on his position as state Democratic chairman and his contacts as former national party chairman, quietly went about the business of lining up delegates long before the president or his friends were aware. He was able to do so by virtue of the very favors he had dispensed as Mr. Roosevelt's chief political mentor and patronage dispenser for the past period of eight years.

REALIZED TOO LATE Not until it was too late did the President and his friends discover the Farley design. Still fretting under the defeat he suffered for the presidency at Chicago in 1940, Farley, the political wise-heads say, was out to elect the next governor of New York and thus lay himself in position to control the state's big block of delegates to the 1944 Democratic national convention.

Throughout the whole scheme was an underlying anti-New Deal motive. The candidate he picked for the governorship was not a New Dealer.

Now common courtesy demands that the President be given consideration in the naming of a party candidate for governor in his home state—even in war time. There is no evidence that Mr. Farley did this. He did not approach the President on the subject until his handiwork was complete, and then only as a means of forestalling White House interference. All of the early political footwork in Mr. Bennett's behalf was done very quietly. The delegates were committed before they were even elected. It was a splendid piece of undercover maneuvering.

DELEGATES ON SPOT When the President and the other state leaders put Senator Mead in the race they were confronted with a situation of the delegates having committed themselves to Mr. Farley and finding it embarrassing to go back on their word. Many of them, either personally or through members of their families, had been the beneficiary of political favors handed out by Farley when he was dispensing patronage for the administration as Mr. Roosevelt's postmaster general and national party chairman. They were on the spot.

Now that the deed had been done there is nothing left for the party to do but go along with the Farley hand-picked candidate. Efforts will be made to patch up the fight, but at the present outlook, however, only a political miracle seems able to pull Mr. Bennett through. The Republicans were never more optimistic in their lives.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

Emotionalism Not Important. A good many observers of the reactions of the American people to the war seem to be worried that, as a general thing, the public does not realize the seriousness of the situation.

Of course, the series of the strikes in various war industries does, to a certain extent, support this view. But still, it isn't necessary to condemn everyone just because of the subversive, disloyal actions of a few. And, when workers in a war industry strike because of a jurisdictional dispute between organized labor factions, or because they think they should get a few cents an hour more pay, such a strike is neither more nor less sabotage of the nation—subversive and disloyal both.

However, to get back to the theme of the opening paragraph, just because folks as a whole are taking the war quietly, without much emotional outburst, is no reason to think they don't understand and are not ready to do their full part for victory.

The day of brass bands and flying flags and wildly cheering crowds as the troops march away for war has gone. Nowadays we don't even mention the day contingents leave, where they are going or anything about troop movements. For darn good reason.

But, just because we don't visibly cheer them on their way, en masse, does not mean that there isn't every quiet cheer possible in the hearts of all of us. And the boys know that, as they move unostentatiously away for some distant battle front.

The same In England. This quiet acceptance of the fact of war is not peculiar to America. We noticed the same thing in England in September, 1939, when that country first found herself at war with Germany.

In London the only evidences of war were found in the material things, not in the people. The sandbags and the barrage balloons, the air raid shelters and the black-out.

There is no reason to doubt our own people, non-cheerers too, wouldn't rise to the emergency just as did the British when their call came. The people may be taking things quietly. But that does not mean they are not taking them with full seriousness.

Except, of course, those few saboteurs mentioned before, the few who lead our factory war

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

What Is New Dealism? NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—What, then, is this New Dealism which is being repudiated in the state of New York this year in the nomination by the Democratic party of John Bennett, the state attorney general, and the defeat of President Roosevelt's man, Senator Jim Mead?

It is not a philosophy, a program or a policy. It is something of itself, compounded of flippancy in the treatment of issues deeply affecting the rights and principles of old-style Americans, of the impudence personified by Tommy Corcoran, of Joseph Lash supping at the White House, of cynicism, nepotism and contempt.

It is such campaign phrases as "Keep your friends in power" and "Tax, spend and elect." It is Charlie Michelson as a lachrymose familiar of the White House while drawing a large salary from a radio company and Senator Joe Gufty, of Pennsylvania, drawing $10,000 a year from the public purse, plus about $5,000 a year in the usual allowances, but owing an income tax.

Until publicity and political pressure, after many years, forced him to pay, although not, so far as the public is allowed to know, with the compound interest that other men must pay on their arrears.

It is Harold Ickes, the pure in heart, trafficking with Frank Hague of humanity and a singer from an underworld dive bellowing "God Bless America" at a political convention.

Here Is Paradox It is the National Youth Administration and the provision in the revenue act that the son or daughter of a self-supporting American family is no longer dependent at the age of 18 when the college years begin, although the clients of the Youth Administration deserve public assistance for their education to the age of 25.

New Dealism is little conferences and interesting discussions by talky and precocious adolescents and silly old philosophers at Vassar and Campobello and gratuitous ballyhoo for a Communist film arguing the failure of the American system of government to feed and house a people accustomed to feed and house themselves.

It is the Labor Relations Board wiggling an American citizen as an oppressor of labor if he dares declare to his employees his conviction that a union is a transmission belt of the Communist party or a racket run by criminals. It is Mrs. Mary Norton, a congresswoman from Hague's home district in New Jersey, serving as chairman of the House Committee on Labor, although her district is the home grounds of Joe Fay, the most dangerous union hoodlum out of jail and a powerful henchman of Mrs. Norton and her political boss. It is the spectacle of other congressmen routing past Mrs. Norton's mission all legislation intended to put down racketeering and other forms of brigandage and Fascism perpetrated on the people by unionists in the confirmed belief that she would stop them cold if they came to her.

Special Privilege New Dealism is special privilege and the exploitation of the great national emergency of poverty and idleness for personal profit and political power and the use of public money to put the poor in a grateful mood at election time. It is also, on its outer crumb, a form of journalism which vilifies all opposition, however conscientious and patriotic, and cries "Quisling and Nazi" and "Hitler stooge" in an attempt to silence and extinguish the two-party system through intimidation.

It is the condonation of violent insurrection against government in the name of labor, with the result that in Michigan government has lost some degree of the public's old confidence in authority and government and, in New York, it is LaGuardia, endorsing the candidacy of a congressman who has faithfully followed the Communist party line and who is the Communists' favorite in congress.

All this is New Dealism and this is what the Democratic convention repudiated when John Bennett was nominated. The people know very little of what Bennett stands for, because he is a relatively obscure man, but in the campaign now warming up they know what both he and Tom Dewey are against.

There is no question of war or appeasement here. Both men are as sound on the issue of war, as patriotic and as loyal to the President as any member of his own following. The issue of New Dealism is strictly domestic and never before has it been so openly and strongly rebuked.

workers into strikes. Or any technicality involving work stoppage.

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today. From the news columns of Friday, August 24, 1917: "Washington, August 23.—Russia's critical internal situation, aggravated by the new German drive against Riga threatening the capital, is watched by officials here with grave concern. It became known today that official advice was closely in accord with press dispatches describing grave political conditions."

And Fifty Years Ago. From the news columns of Thursday, August 24, 1892: "Buffalo, August 24.—At midnight tonight Mr. Sweeney, at the head of the switchmen's order, officially recognized the fact that the strike movement of the switchmen, begun 12 days ago, had failed. In official terms of the order, the strike was 'declared off.'"

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

LOST—15 DIVISIONS Army officials have revealed that 15 divisions have been lost to service because that many young men are functionally illiterate. That's a lot of soldiers we could use.

In Georgia we were shocked when more than 30,000 men of military age were found to be illiterate. Georgians, along with others in southern states, were embarrassed at the information from official census reports that the average school advancement in Georgia is the fourth grade.

The Army finds that about a half million men, 25 years of age and over, in the I-A group alone, are functionally illiterate. The government found that 10,000,000 adults, over 25 years of age, were functionally illiterate. Of that number 2,800,000 had no schooling at all.

The others are fourth graders or less. Army tests have found that occasional sixth graders are functionally illiterate.

Time was when he called a man illiterate if he could not sign his name.

The Army came along and said that a soldier, in these days of mechanization, should be able to read signs, read names on a map and instructions as to his job. It was no longer possible to say that a man who could scrawl his name and a few other words, was a literate person.

We used to deceive ourselves with that fiction.

We were complacent. The Army must have shaken us out of it. If it hasn't there is not much hope about the future.

With one adult of every seven, over 25 years of age, functionally illiterate, we still await the report on the group from 18 years up.

WHO ARE THEY? What about the 10,000,000 over 25 years of age? Where do they live? Of what races are they?

Some 7,300,000 of the number are white, with 4,200,000 native born among them. Negroes make up 2,700,000.

The other races are but a handful, about 100,000.

The highest number, of course, are to be found in the states with the most population. (It was this which caused Governor Talmadge to say New York state was the most illiterate. New York city alone has three times the total Georgia population.)

The highest percentages are to be found in the south. There are six southern states with more than 25 per cent functional illiteracy—Louisiana, South Carolina, North Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi. Louisiana is highest, with the somewhat dismaying percentage of almost 36 per cent. There are but three states with percentages of 30 per cent or more. They are Louisiana, Mississippi and Georgia. Iowa, with a percentage of 4.1, has the smallest percentage.

Dudley Glass

As our state campaign reaches the turn of the backstretch and is just about to come down the straightaway to the finish wire a reader of the weekly press observes that politics is—as we say—or are—as the British say—somewhat hot, heated or hectic.

Already we are being flooded with guesses on how many counties Arnall will carry and how many will stick to Old

Gene. They vary according to the guesser's optimism or pessimism, as the case may be.

I would not venture a guess. Far less a bet. Bets have cost me many a dollar in the days when I could forecast a primary with unerring accuracy. In those days I knew just how Georgia would go. In a national election I could even figure the vote in Idaho down to a goat's heel. Which is one reason I am still paying installments on that mortgage.

But I do hope we shall not be afflicted with straw votes, wired "collect" by some enthusiast.

Before Mr. Gallup went into the business in a systematic way, straw votes were considered the last word. They were taken in barber shops, where six of the seven customers were for Smith, and in buses, where 19 of the 21 passengers were for Jones, the remaining two being infants in arms, unable to express themselves.

Irvin Cobb tells a story of straw votes. It seems an enthusiast from the north, on a Mississippi local train, had absorbed quite a quantity of the native wine of the country, more familiarly known as wash juice. So he took a straw vote in a passenger car and got off at the next station and telegraphed to the New York Times that Mississippi was going to vote Republican, or 100 per cent.

It was not until he had arrived in Memphis and taken a Turkish bath and assembled his faculties that he realized he had been on a Jim Crow coach.

Colorful War.

This World War, if my memory of the other one doesn't deceive me, is a much more colorful affair. In that embroglio of 25 years ago the war correspondents had a dull time—until after the armistice, when they could go into occupied Germany and describe the beauty of the frauleins and the flavor of Bavarian beer.

It was a dull war, after the first big pushes of the Boche and up until the Argonne and Sergeant York. Maybe it wasn't so dull for the fighting element but it furnished little hot news.

Guesses on Counties; That's Not So Bad, But Cut Straw Votes

After both sides had settled down into the trenches for the duration the lads with the notebooks found little to cable home besides the depth of the mud, the census of the cooties and the aroma of a defunct soldier hanging on the wire in No-Man's Land.

Things were going on here and there but they went on 200 miles away from the correspondents, who rarely heard of them until they got back home and read the papers.

This war is different. There are few if any trenches. Both sides are out in the open—and largely in the air.

I can't say about the German army, but accredited correspondents appear to be welcome among the forces of the United Nations. They have sailed on battleships, shared the hardships and dangers of Bataan and Corregidor and small boats in tropic seas. They even flew with the raiding squadrons which blasted Dieppe and one of them got back to England all bloodied up and a hospital case. I'm thinking of Larry Meier, of INS, who was chosen to represent a group of American correspondents—they couldn't take all of them along. There have been many others who have been right up in front where there was something doing, instead of living high at staff headquarters 50 miles back of the front, with the generals. Many of them never got closer than that in World War No. 1.

They are sending home great stories, as any newspaper reader may observe. They have better access to cables and there is the radio now and the trans-Atlantic telephone. Most important, of course, is getting the story while it is fresh. Next important is getting it back to New York, whence it spreads to all the world.

The boys with the notebooks are doing a grand job.

Here's Where I'm Neutral.

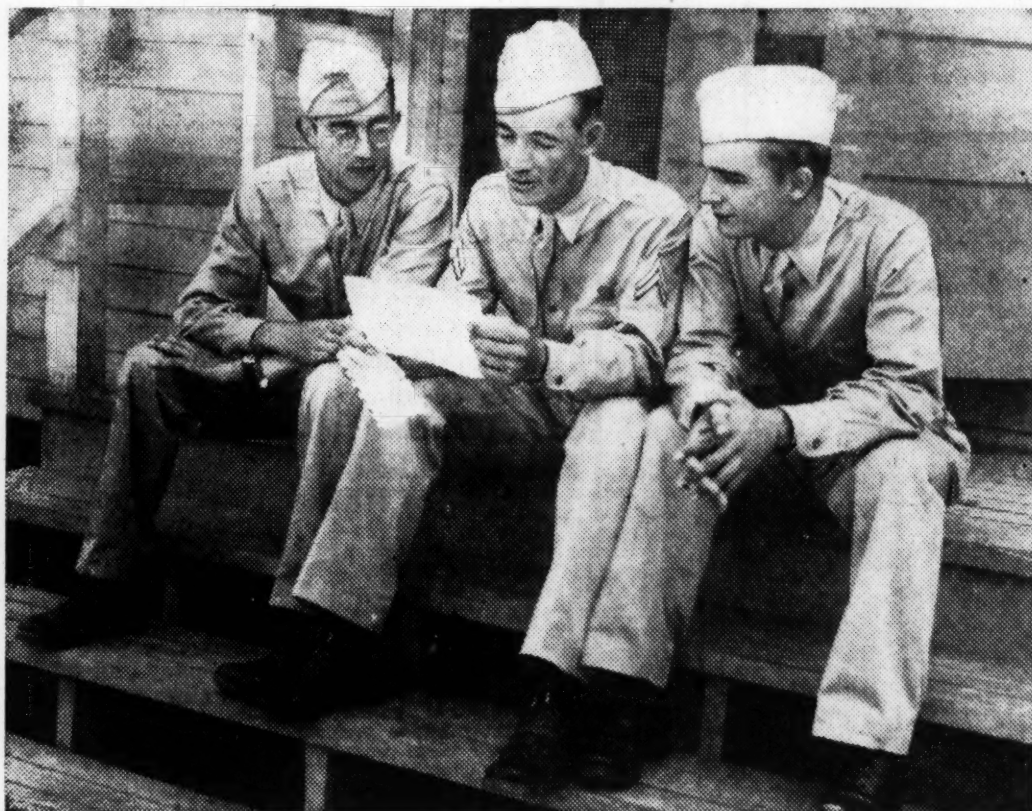

I'm kinder glad that this tremendously influential department of The Constitution is not expected to make a deep study of the issues of the campaign or campaigns and, like Nero in the Roman Coliseum, turn its thumb up—or down—and thereby decide the fate of a sovereign state. It would be too much of a burden to bear.

I am thinking of the race for congress between Bob Ramspeck and Jere Wells.

Say what you will about issues and records, it always boils down—if you know the rival candidates—to personal friendships.

Nobody who knows Bob Ramspeck well would like to vote against him. That goes, too, for Jere Wells. I like Jere so much I'd like to help him get anything he wants.

Whatcha going to do in a case like that? I could go fishing on primary day—though I'm not crazy about fishing. And there

Sailor Gets Tingle; It's Phone's Jingle

By LOUIE D. NEWTON

MERKLE, Ind., Aug. 23.—(AP)—A telephone's jingle, jangle in the night at the Harry Welches' home gave their son, Seaman Kenneth Welches, a "tingle" as he leaped from bed and hustled into clothes before he got his bearings.

Welches said the phone call sounded like a call to stations on shipboard. He's on furlough after serving in Atlantic convoy duty.

are a few contests in which I want to vote. I understand the rules permit me to "write in" the candidates of my choice. For congress, I think I'll vote for Abner Q. Johnson. I don't know his home address or factional affiliations, but last spring he sent me a couple of cantaloupes and a mess of young onions. Maybe he'd be delighted to learn, when the ballots are counted, that he received a vote for an office when he wasn't even running.

Good Morning 'All for One' Motto of Three Keys Brothers

By LOUIE D. NEWTON

All up and down this country, 24 hours in every day, a group of trained, devoted people is rendering a vital service in these stressful days of unrelenting effort to win this war. I refer to the men and women who keep the wheels of transportation turning.

They are doing one grand job. I haven't had occasion to see much of what they are doing, but enough to know that they are in there pitching all the time. For example:

I had to go up to Ridgecrest, N. C., last week for an engagement made long before Pearl Harbor. I first thought of canceling the engagement, but I did go. My few trips to western North Carolina in the last decade have been by auto, since the overnight sleeper to Asheville was discontinued; but I knew I must get there this time either by train or bus, or walk. I made the trip up by train, which required all day; and back by bus, which required half a day and most of a night.

And what I saw on that trip deepened my appreciation of these people who are keeping the wheels turning, just as all my recent trips have similarly impressed me.

The train from Atlanta to Spartanburg, under the command of that beloved veteran, Conductor J. D. Martin, was drawn by a double-header. When I stood on the stairs at Peachtree station and saw the two big locomotives steam past, I was thrilled with the sense of their power, and by the time I got through counting the cars and saw the jam of folks in every car, plus the several mail and baggage cars, I knew those engines had their task laid out for them. The train left Peachtree station a half hour late. It rolled into Spartanburg on the dot. And it was like that from Spartanburg to Asheville. Grand service, with a smile.

Coming back, I saw that throng gathered about the bus station, and I wondered what on earth they would do with us. The first bus was loaded, and then the second, and now the third; and I was in the third. And those drivers were smiling amid questions and impatient remarks of the jostling throng. Down at Greenville it was the same, only more so. They were running late and had no chance at making up time because of the continuous rain. But they kept rolling, and they kept smiling.

150 Planes Could Halt Japs' China Air Force, AVG Hero Says

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 23.—(AP)—George L. Paxton, 30-year-old Texan who once was outnumbered and shot down by Japanese fighters as he served with the American Volunteer Group in Burma, said today he thought the United States could wipe out Japanese air power in China by maintaining a force of 100 fighters and 50 bombers there.

At the same time, the Abilene Flying Tiger disagreed with those who contend the Japanese made a mistake in spreading out so far in their operations. The mistake was in stopping when they did, he said in an interview.

"Don't kid yourself—they had the power and they still have it," he remarked.

Boys at Atlanta Motor Base To Work, Fight Together.

The motto of the "Three Musketeers"—"all for one and one for all"—and the fictional tale of the Beau Geste combination of the French Foreign Legion are brought to mind by the three Keys brothers, student-soldiers at the Atlanta Quartermaster Motor Base, First Provisional Company.

Inseparable in civilian life, they're resolved to stick together during their term of service in the U. S. Army.

The trio, consisting of Harry, 28, John, 23, and Robert, 21, were inducted together June 19 at Fort Hayes, Ohio, reception center. Harry and John were called to service simultaneously and Robert, not to be outdone by his older brothers, volunteered. The Keys brothers hail from East Liverpool, Ohio.

Sent to Camp Lee.
From the outset they determined to keep together until the victory is won. At the induction center they requested assignments to the same basic training center and since almost everything in the Army is done "by the numbers," the lads were sent to Camp Lee, Va., for basic military training attached to Company K, 12th Regiment.

"We are glad we have been sent to the Motor Transport school for training as parts specialists because we already have some experience in that field and we are eager to learn the Army procedure through the parts specialist course," said John. They worked for their father who conducts an automotive parts business in the Ohio city.

They bunk in the same barracks, drill together, spend their off duty-hours together, attend the same classes and rarely are separated for any length of time.

Same at Home.
It was the same way at home. They played tennis and golf together and seldom were seen doing anything alone—in work or play. Officers' Candidate school is their current aspiration and they plan to apply in the near future.

"We hope either that we are all accepted or all turned down. Otherwise we would be subjected to parting of the ways," John stated.

Harry's Army career has advanced him in the rank of acting corporal in charge of a squad in the First Provisional Company and his two brothers are proud of this and when Harry sounds a command they are quick to obey.

The three student-soldier brothers will train for three months at the base to uphold the Quartermaster Corps motto, "Keep 'Em Rolling," in the automotive parts course, presented through a three-way program of lectures, film demonstrations and actual practice in the base shops. After graduation they hope to go out to serve their country side by side.

Viscount Dunedin Dies In Scotland at Age 92
EDINBURGH, Scotland, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Viscount Dunedin, 92, keeper of the great seal of the principality of Scotland since 1900 and died in his youth as a cyclist, died yesterday. He left no heir.

Paxton's flight of six Flying Tigers was caught by 27 Japs January 24, he related. Three of the Americans were downed but all survived crash landings at or near their airfield. The Texan's plane was riddled by 61 machine gun bullets and five struck him but the wounds were slight and he required but a day's hospitalization. Only one enemy plane was downed.

"Usually it went the other way, but somebody has to get the hard luck some time," he said.

He expects the Japanese in Burma to move again when the monsoon season ends, in about a month, but thinks they will strike at China rather than India.

SAYS CARROLL COUNTY WILL VOTE FOR ARNALL

Editor, Constitution: In reply to C. C. Perkins appearing in "Pulse of Public" August 19.

C. C. Perkins is the 18-year-old son of W. R. Perkins. W. R. Perkins is game warden for Carroll county, appointed by Governor Talmadge.

C. C. Perkins claims Talmadge will sweep Georgia clean from Rabun Gap to Tybee Lights, from the mountains to the sea.

Now I am not so well posted as he claims to be, but you may be assured Carroll county will go strong for Ellis Arnall on September 9.

COMPARES LEW AYRES AND CLARK GABLE

Editor Constitution: We Americans are funny folks. Take the case of two movie idols, one a popular "he-man" type, the other usually cast as a "young medical intern." Let's see how the nation's press handled the war efforts of these two screen stars.

Only a few days ago I read an AP story to the effect that Movie Actor Clark Gable had volunteered his services to Uncle Sam... enlisting in the Army as a buck private, with the request that he be trained as a "gunner" on a bomber. It seems that Actor Gable was offered a high ranking commission... but that he turned it down to start at the bottom of the ladder.

The story I read carried a Los Angeles tagline, I'd like to put in my two cents' worth for the way it was handled. The AP reporter who wrote the piece gave Mr. Gable this pat on the back (or would you call it knife in the back?): Quote: "The screen star's hand was shaking noticeably as he raised it to say 'I do' in a half-faltering voice." Well, Mr. Editor, that was a bad enough send-off for a new recruit in Uncle Sam's fighting services, but The Constitution followed up the same line of thought with the following headline over the story: "Gable Nervous as He Signs Up as a Buck Private."

On the other hand, only a few months ago, we had news stories about our other famous movie idol. It seems he was a conscientious objector to war and all that it stands for... regardless of who the enemy was. The touching and sympathetic articles that appeared in the nation's press on this case would twitch the heart-strings of old Hitler himself.

Now, I'm no "movie nut," nor am I a hero worshipper... but it makes by blood boil to see a red-blooded guy like Clark Gable portrayed as a "weak-kneed soldier applicant" while the press leans over backward to picture Lew Ayres as a high and noble young man whose conscientious objections were prompted by the loftiest of motives.

Let's give credit where credit is due. A prayer and a vote of thanks for men like Gable, and the less said about fellows like Ayers the better.

Miami Beach Has 'Room For Guests Despite Training Units.'

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Aug. 23.—(AP)—"Tain't so, says Mayor Val C. Cleary to reports that Miami Beach won't be able to care for winter visitors during the coming season because it is a major Air Force training center.

"Miami Beach has a tremendous guest capacity. Still available for civilian use are 1,103 hotels and apartment buildings with choice accommodations.

"You can still play golf, go fishing in the Gulf Stream, bathe on the beaches and take boat trips. Bars close at midnight, but clubs remain open for dancing and entertainment. And visitors needn't bring their cars—there are plenty of buses, taxicabs and drive-yourself vehicles."

When the Blackout Comes

Trolley Service Will Be Halted

When the Blackout signals sound Monday night, all street cars, trackless trolleys and buses will come to a stop and the lights will be turned out. Passengers may get out and proceed on foot, or remain in the cars, as they choose. Riders who leave the cars will be given emergency transfers so they can continue their trips after the Blackout on any available vehicle.

Interurban cars, as well as city cars will be stopped. The Blackout will cover all of Fulton, DeKalb and Cobb counties, which means that trolley service to and from Stone Mountain, Marietta, Decatur, College Park, Hapeville, Oglethorpe University and other communities will be affected.

Important Warning—If you have to catch a train, or get to work, or keep an engagement at a certain time, be sure to allow for the delay the Blackout may cause. Remember that all transportation service will be halted for approximately one hour. Make your plans accordingly. Give yourself plenty of time.

Be Sure To Darken All Windows

It is not necessary to pull the main switch, cutting off all electric service in your home. When the Blackout begins, turn out all lights except in those rooms which have been prepared with Blackout materials over the windows. Retire to these rooms, being sure that no light shows from the outside. Remain there until you get the all clear signal. If you pull the main switch, you will cut off your refrigerator, electric clocks, radio and other permanently connected electrical appliances. There's no need to do that. The important thing is to have your house completely dark from the outside.

Fall Term at Crichton's Business College Starts Aug. 31, Sept. 8-14

Offer Intensive Study To Train For Victory

Strong Demand Now for Trained Workers Due to War.

It has been nearly a quarter of a century since young people have had such a chance for patriotic and profitable service as is open to them today. The federal government is taking thousands of men and women out of industry and business for war service and their places must be filled at once. There is a particularly strong demand for men and women who are competent stenographers and who know something of the fundamentals of bookkeeping and accounting.

War Program.

There are two theories at the moment concerning education and particularly business education. One is that, since employment is plentiful, the student should take the shortest possible course and begin to enjoy the thrill of their own pay day; while, on the other hand, far-seeing men and women realize that we are now in an abnormal period and that when we come back to "business as usual," training that may be sufficient for the present emergency will not meet the requirements of business then. So the student has his choice and should choose wisely.

For men who expect to be inducted into service Crichton's courses have special value. And incidentally, as far as we know, practically every young man who has gone from our school into the Army or Navy with a knowledge of shorthand and typing has been put into a military or naval office. Women are needed to fill the places of men who have gone into service and to take up with the vast amount of office business transacted in our government and private businesses.

HANDS IN TRAINING FOR VICTORY—Above shows shorthand, typing, comptometer, bookkeeping and stenotyping, parts of various business courses taught at Crichton's Business College.

One of the greatest services women can render their country at this time is to prepare promptly and improve their personal power in this "all-out" war effort that our government needs now. Crichton's business administration course is recommended to all students who are looking for superior preparation for employment. This course includes shorthand, typing, bookkeeping, accounting, filing, business English, commercial law, office arithmetic, the use of office machines, training in business organization and management, and a number of other subjects that contribute much to the education of the prospective office worker. The approximate time to finish this course is 12 to 15 months. In this, the best Civil Service course, the emphasis is on shorthand, typing, secretarial bookkeeping and training. High speeds in shorthand and typing are required, besides which the student is trained in business letter writing, the fundamentals of commercial law, the common application of arithmetic to office work, the use of business machines, special training in filing, and the art of managing a secretarial job. The average time required is eight to ten months.

Stenographic.

This course at Crichton's is planned especially for students who look forward to stenographic employment, but who are limited either as to time or money and must make their preparation as quickly as possible. The course is built around shorthand and typing but includes English, business spelling, a course in stenographic office practice and business letter writing with dictaphone operation and mimeographing added. This excellent course can be finished in four to six months.

In addition to the above listed courses, Crichton's Business College offers instruction in comptometer, Burroughs electric bookkeeping machine, Burroughs calculating machine and stenotypy, the machine way of taking dictation that is so much in demand in government positions, court and convention reporting.

Enroll Today.

All courses carry the lifetime scholarship which means a student may return to school at any time to review any subject previously taken, without further charge. Crichton's Placement Bureau gives all possible assistance in securing employment for qualified graduates, as has been customary for the past 57 years. The school operates continuously throughout the year and students may enroll at any time. Monthly installments may be paid on the contract for any course purchased, or a discount is allowed on tuition price of any course if paid in full on entrance. Crichton's Business College is fully accredited by the National Association of Accredited Commercial Schools, and this association is the only accrediting agency for private business schools or colleges, operating with full university powers conferred by a federal charter. The office of Crichton's Business College at Plaza Way and Pryor, is open from 9 to 4 each day, five days a week, and from 9 to 12 on Saturday, to give any information requested or enroll anyone wishing to train for victory. Call WA 9341 for full information or write and explanatory literature will be mailed.

Shades, Blinds Featured by Beauty-Crafts

Makes Them to Order, As Well as Clean Venetian Blinds.

Beauty Crafts, Inc., located at 34 Simpson street, N. W., corner of Spring, maintains a large shade department, where du Pont Tontine washable window shades are made up to order of the finest all-cloth shade materials on the market. These shades carry a 10-year guarantee against pinholing, cracking or fading.

This concern is also manufacturer of Venetian blinds, created out of highest quality and de luxe custom made. Their blinds are made of Port Oxford white cedar to fit any window, whether they be in the home, office or factory. They also maintain a complete renovating department for shades and Venetian blinds, using factory methods in handling all types of this work.

One of the most appealing and attractive types of work done by this concern is in the operation of a special machine used for washing and cleaning Venetian blinds. By this method the beauty and original colors are restored. This is a specially built machine, and is the only one of its particular kind in Atlanta. In cleaning every part of the blind is taken apart and is thoroughly washed separately, removing every particle of dirt or grime, and restoring the blind to its original whiteness. This type of service is meeting with much commendation from a large list of patrons of the concern.

The concern is also maker of blackout shades from Tontine material. These are made at a surprisingly low cost. This type of shade can be installed without interference with present curtains, drapes or shades. The new administration building at the Bell Aircraft has just been equipped throughout by this concern with this type of blackout shades.

TERMITE KILLERS—Above shows a group of expert termite inspectors and destroyers connected with the Orkin Exterminating Company, on Peachtree street. Call this company and let them inspect your property free and it may stop an influx of these destroying pests before they get a big start.

Expert Termite Destroyers Is Orkin Concern

Just now, when many property owners see the necessity for remodeling and caring for old residences and business buildings, is the time to see, also, that termites have not taken a hold on their property.

The work of termites and their subtle way of quietly sneaking in and damaging property—millions of dollars being lost in that way—is not generally known. Scores of home owners never know of the existence of termites until they have made big inroads on their property. Examinations and inspections are made free by the Orkin Exterminator Company, Inc., located at 315 Peachtree street.

The termite worker, causing damage in wood, is silent and unseen—termites are exposed only when their shelter tunnels are broken or when damaged wood is exposed. The "swarmer" (winged reproductive) appears in large swarms in the spring and early autumn months. These swarms are usually referred to as flying ants and usually indicate that there is an active termite colony in the immediate vicinity. They work only within the wood; spraying, painting, fumigating, or replacement of damaged timber will not remove a termite condition.

Nearly a half-century is behind its organization, during which time 64 southern branches have been established, and hundreds of men trained in an assured plan of protecting homes from insects and pests of all kinds, with special emphasis on the work of detecting and destroying termites.

When the Orkin system expert finds a building termite-infested, he carefully writes up specifications for the treatment before he leaves the premises. All structural timber and other wood in and about the premises which may be susceptible to attack by termites is drilled and impregnated under sustained pressure with a wood-preserving chemical of proven quality. Walls and other areas through which termites may enter are drilled and treated in a like manner. Soil in unexcavated areas, under porches, terraces, steps or adjacent to foundation walls is also thoroughly treated under pressure. Upon completion of your termite treatment, you receive a written five-year guarantee issued by Orkin, and for your further protection this agreement is bonded by the American Indemnity Company.

13 Jap Planes Are Shot Down In Darwin Raid

Allies Bomb Enemy Positions in North Solomon Islands.

GENERAL MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Monday, Aug. 24.—(P)—Forty-seven Japanese planes, including 27 heavy bombers, staged a big raid on the airfield at Darwin Sunday, but were held to only slight damage by the brilliant work of Allied fighters, who shot down four of the attacking bombers and nine Zero fighter escort planes. Allied headquarters announced today.

The defenders did not lose a single craft. The Allies, in addition to frustrating the Japanese attack, also took the initiative by bombing enemy positions in the northern end of the Solomon Island group. They bombed buildings in the wharf area along Buka passage, the narrow strait which separates the islands of Buka and Bougainville. The results were not observed.

In the raid on Darwin, the Japanese used 27 bombers and 20 fighters. The communiqué said: "Northwestern sector: 'Darwin: 20 heavy bombers escorted by 27 Zero type fighters attacked the airfield causing only slight damage. In a brilliant tactical interception by Allied fighters four enemy bombers and nine Zero fighters were shot down without combat loss to ourselves.'"

"Northeastern sector: 'Buka Passage, Solomons: An Allied unit on offensive reconnaissance bombed enemy buildings and the wharf area with unobserved results.'"

In good shape with minor adjustments, like a turned down hem or cuff, and a proper cleaning. Properly cleaned garments last longer and look better, and Gold Shield cleaning departments are equipped to see that they get this proper cleaning.

Mr. Greenblatt further states that laundries are becoming more and more essential in the nation's war effort—in safeguarding public health—in conserving clothes and in making it possible for women to give their wash day to the war effort.

Current health rules require that people keep clean. That they have clean bodies, clothes, houses, beds, etc. When you send a Gold Shield plant your family laundry, in addition to skilled workmanship you get health protection. Gold Shield considers the safeguarding of health as much a part of its service as the safeguarding of clothes, and every article sent in is sterilized to free it of dangerous germs.

"Protect your investment in clothes," concludes Mr. Greenblatt, "by having them Gold Shielded—and protect your family's future by investing the difference in United States war savings bonds and stamps. And you'll find no more co-operative and loyal a lot than American school children."

Rufus Foster, Senior Circuit Judge, Is Dead

Appointed to Federal Bench by Taft; Former Tulane Athlete.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 23.—(P)—Judge Rufus E. Foster, senior jurist of the United States fifth circuit court of appeals, died at his home here tonight after a long illness. He was 71 years old.

He had been on the federal bench for 32 years, since President Taft nominated him district judge for the eastern district of Louisiana in 1910. President Coolidge nominated him for the circuit court in 1925.

Judge Foster had been senior jurist of the circuit for about 10 years, presiding over the tribunal which hears appeals from federal district courts in Florida, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas and the Canal Zone.

He was prominent in southern athletics in the '90's, playing on the first football team to represent Tulane University, in 1892, and establishing a reputation as an oarsman and bicyclist.

Survivors include the widow, the former Blanche Ahrens; two daughters, Mrs. Charles Lynch, of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. August Mysing, New Orleans.

IRANIAN GENERAL SLAIN.

TEHRAN, Iran, Aug. 23.—(P)—General Chahab, director of an officers' school, was shot to death today as he conversed with a group of officers. The assailant, a dismissed cadet, was arrested.

Farmers Battle To Keep War Engines Going

It fires one bale of cotton from Georgia or some other southern state. Powder is made from alcohol and cotton.

If one 16-inch gun is fired five times it fires five bales of cotton and the alcohol from an acre of sugar cane or from 7½ acres of wheat.

Must Shoulder Load.

Food from 155 acres of land go to the men at work in the starting and completion of one huge bomber.

Only one country in the world can feed the war machine.

Others can help. This country must shoulder the big load.

The job the 6,000,000 farms of this country must do is a staggering one.

The Department of Agriculture has produced the comparative figures of what the world is eating from American farms. Factories thunder, steel mills smoke and roar, shops clatter and clank. None makes food.

What has the farmer of this country done?

He started, at the request of the President and the Secretary of Agriculture, on increased production in April of 1941, eight months before Pearl Harbor. Production goals were set in September of that year.

In Georgia, in every other state, farmers signed up. The goals were raised higher.

What are they doing?

5 Million Eggs an Hour.

Every hour of each 24-hour day the farms of the nation are producing 6,486,000 quarts of milk. Every hour of the day 5,236,000 eggs come off this farm "production line."

Every hour of the day 134 carloads of hogs are loaded for market. That means 32 trainloads a day—each 100 cars long.

Every hour 88 carloads of beef—21 trainloads of beef each day—100 cars long—are going to market. (Still we face a shortage.)

Every hour—40 tons of peanut oil—63 tons of soybean oil.

This is on a 24-hour basis for each 365 days of the year.

The story of how the farmers of this—and the other American states—have increased production is one of the greatest victories of the war. While our armed forces have been winning one or two, the farmers have won a great victory.

The increases in production in 1942, over the average for the five-year period from 1935-39, inclusive, is sensational.

5-Year Increases.

These are just the increases—over that period:

Enough milk to float the entire Navy.

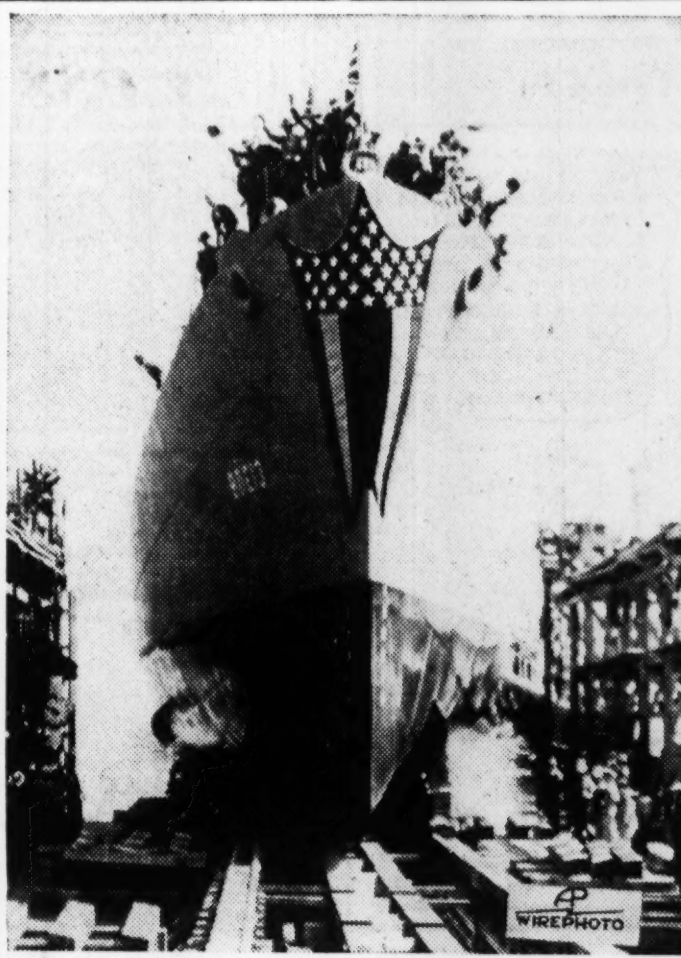

Enough one-dozen egg cartons, placed end to end, to reach from the earth to the moon. (So you won't have to look it up; I'll do it for you; it's 238,857 miles.)

Enough meat, of all kinds, to pave a four-lane highway one inch thick, from New York to San Francisco.

MADE IN DENVER—An amazing development in ship construction went into completion of H. M. S. ## German Tanks Cut New Wedge Into Volga Line

miles from the Grozny derricks. (The Germans again failed to mention the Stalingrad battle but said Russian attempts to cross the Don at various points were frustrated. Strong Russian positions and road barriers in unspecified sections of the Caucasus were declared penetrated and Russian counterattacks were said to have been repulsed. This drive apparently was south of Krasnodar.)

(The Germans said strong Russian infantry and tank attacks were repelled in the Kaluga and Rzhev sectors southwest and northwest of Moscow. Soviet thrusts southeast of Lake Ilmen and outside Leningrad were said to have collapsed. The Germans claimed their air force destroyed two freighters and a tug on the Volga. The destruction of 161 tanks, 86 of them on the front of a single Army corps, was reported in the Moscow sectors, indicating very heavy Russian attacks.)

The Germans were making their greatest effort before Stalingrad where success would give them one of their ultimate objectives for the entire 1942 campaign as waged so far.

Volga Line in Peril.

Stalingrad with its vast tractor plant which now produces tanks, its oil refineries and numerous other industrial plants, is a rich prize in itself. But even more important is its location at the Volga, Russia's main street along which the oil of Baku and the Allied supplies shipped via the Persian gulf reach central Russia.

The Germans used a full array of bombers, tanks, mobile artillery and motorized infantry northeast of Kotelnikovsky, where they were ignoring their own losses and attempting with all means to plunge forward to the lower Volga.

The assault was aimed at several sectors.

The Russians defended themselves under agonizing conditions with a hot west wind and shifting brush fires showering them with ashes and embers. The narrow streams in that region were dried up and the wells were few and far apart.

Fires Screen Nazis.

The Germans used the fires as a screen for mechanized attacks, but the Russians kept their heads above their trenches even while the flames crackled around them. They directed their own gunfire against the advancing enemy machines.

A German tank group broke into the depth of the Russian defenses in one Kotelnikovsky sector after several fierce assaults at a point where the Germans had concentrated a large force. The army newspaper Red Star said the Russians counterattacked swiftly and checked the advance, pinning the tank group down from two sides soon after the breakthrough.

The battle continued to swirl

Ben Hill County's Pulpits Sound Plea For Harvest Help

FITZGERALD, Ga., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Ben Hill County's drive to help farmers harvest their crops began spreading today as ministers asked for more volunteers amid indications that other counties would adopt the program.

Pastors of this rural county asked their church congregations to volunteer to help pick cotton next week in an effort to relieve farmers already burdened with war-enlarged crops and hampered by labor shortages. This would release field hands for harder work of shaking and stacking peanuts.

Schools and law-enforcement agencies also are co-operating in the drive, begun by schoolboy and girl volunteers. Representative Stephen Pace, Democrat, Georgia, said he would ask the United States Department of Agriculture and the War Manpower Board to form a nation-wide plan for similar volunteer groups in farm areas.

Grid Team Volunteers.

Fitzgerald High school's football team volunteered recently for peanut harvesting, which coincides with cotton picking, and a woman's harvest auxiliary corps also was organized to aid the field workers and recruit younger boys for light labor.

Five girls of other south Georgia counties, who have been here a week as "unofficial observers" for their own high schools, were commissioned yesterday as "aides" to Chief of Staff Jean Martin of the "WHAC's." The high school harvest battalion was streamlined by the appointment of Miss Martin under Staff Captain James Harden and Field Captain Francis Raynor.

She has been head of the "WHAC" county agents, Future Farmers, 4-H clubs, all are at work.

But More Is Needed.

In 1943 the increases must be greater. Therefore, farm agents say, investigate your farm. Find out how lime and phosphorus can be had from the Triple A. Find out what a five-year program will mean. And cost nothing.

Find out how eroded hills can become, within two and three years, pastures for beef, pork and lamb.

Find out the best land uses. Patriotic committees, patriotic farmers, patriotic agents and farm workers of all kinds are on the job.

The story of the victory of the American farmer in 1942 is one of the war's most smashing victories. And the least known.

He must score a greater one in 1943.

He will do it.

That is why the Triple A agents and the farmers who are agents in each county have been meeting.

That is why teachers of vocational education are at work; why county agents, Future Farmers, 4-H clubs, all are at work.

Other Aides.

The new "aides" from other counties are Elizabeth Phillips, Tattall county; Betty Martin, Glynn; Agnes Feuger, Chatham; Betty Ann McDonald, Irwin; and Carolyn Pittman, Telfair. ## Woman Loses Man's Respect By Acting Too Submissively

Dear Dixie:

I have been married for six years and have an eight-month-old daughter. My husband was true to me until just before the baby was born and since then he has been running around with other girls. I always find it out and tell him about it, but he says it is not true but I know that it is, and he knows I know it. Sometimes I think of leaving him and going away to see if that would change him, but I know that I could not stay for I love him too much.

He tells me he loves me and our little girl better than anything and could not live without me. Sometimes I think that he does not love me and then I think he does not. I work in the day and half of the night and do everything to make him happy. I never go anywhere, but stay at home and work. He never wants me to laugh and talk to anyone. But other men never enter my mind for he is the only one. Sometimes I think I must love him too much and am too good to him.

Do you think that a man loves his wife as he says he loves me that he would run around with other girls and leave me to worry myself to death? No one knows how happy I am when he is at home, but when he is gone, I am very unhappy. I am 22 and he is 24. What can I do to change him?

By Dixie George.

BROKEN HEARTED.

I agree with you that if he loved you he would not run around with the other women, but then you must understand that some men will do this way in spite of hell and high water and at the same time they love their wives. It seems to me that it is a very poor way of proving his love.

I think you are too good to him and if I were you I would go on and enjoy myself as much as possible. Why not be gay and happy? I think he would like for you to be that way, although I am not sure of his reaction to your reactions. I am telling you for your own good. I think that you should stop worrying about him, and not give the satisfaction that what he is doing is making you so unhappy. I think that the more he knows he is worrying you, the more he is going to treat you in this way.

Start now to live a new life. After all you have your little girl to think of, as well as yourself, so do not let your husband intimidate you. Take what he says with a grain of salt and let him know you have him on probation and when he tells you that he loves you so much and could not live without you, tell him that it is all sour and fine but that his action does not parallel his talk. He thinks that you are afraid of him, so the thing for you to do is to start leading your life as you wish to and do not let him tell you what you can and cannot do. Perhaps if you were a bit different he would not be wanting to step out with the other girls so much. You do not have to run around with other men to be gay and happy. If he accuses you of that, the thing to tell him is that it is a good suggestion and perhaps you might try it sometime. It might be a good idea to let him know that you can step out, too.

JUDGE MAN BY ACTIONS
RATHER THAN WORDS
Dear Dixie:

I am 15 and am in love with R. G. We were engaged and the day we were to marry he left and I haven't seen him since. I know he will be back, though, and I want to know how to act. I love him more than anybody in the world, but people tell me that he does not care anything about me. He tells me he loves me more than anybody in the world, and also tells me not to believe other people. At times I think he loves me and other times I think he does not. We were planning on marrying on a certain day and he went to get his car, but I have not seen him or his car. I am sure he will come back to me. Other boys come and tell me he has dates with other girls and when I ask him about it he says the boys are just jealous and think that I will step out and go with them. He has given me my engagement ring.

WORRIED MIND.
I think your boy friend is quite a two timer, and to be perfectly frank with you I do not think he is taking his supposed marriage to you at all seriously. As you speak louder than words, so I think he has proven to you by running out on you that his words mean very little.

In the first place I think that you are not being honest with a marriage. In the second place I think you are being very foolish to have so much trust in a man whose actions do not match his talk. Suppose you were married to him and he walked out and left you? What would happen then? Could you support yourself? Do you think you could ever have any trust in a man who treats you this way? You better forget about him, or at least try to be indifferent about him, but he will not be continuously worrying you. If he dates other girls that is proof enough that he is not being true to you, which he certainly should be, since you have your ring.

By the time the babies were six months old, anybody could point out the ones whose mothers had been on the good diet. All these babies were given the same care and attention from birth. But those whose mothers were better fed were healthier. They were the ones who got the best possible start in life.

Sometimes it is difficult to stretch the budget to menus that are up to the nutritional standard. But there are inexpensive sources of important nutrients and knowing these makes the job easier. As you may know, you need a full quart of milk a day, and toward the end of the period, five glasses a day. If you cannot afford this entire quantity in fresh milk, have part of it in evaporated milk. A 14 and a half ounce can of evaporated milk has the food value of one quart of fresh whole milk.

You need extra Vitamin A—but there is always an inexpensive green of some kind on the market and greens are rich sources of A. Make sure that you have one green leafy vegetable every day. The butter/substitutes are now enriched with Vitamin A and are just as nutritious as butter. In addition, you need two teaspoons of cod liver oil daily.

For adequate Vitamin C, take your choice of oranges or the juice, grapefruit, or tomato juice. The fruit juice can be either fresh or canned but have it every day. For more of this vitamin, have raw cabbage often and always cook the potatoes in their jacket.

Iron is so important that you should try to have one egg a day and beef liver once a week. Use molasses now and then instead of sugar. Those foods, along with the greens, lean meats and whole grains—all bread and cereal should be whole grain—assure you of enough iron.

You need additional liquid, so drink the liquid in which vegetables are cooked. Never add soda to vegetables while cooking. It destroys vitamins.

Good nutrition is influenced by proper rest, sleep and exercise. You need them all for a healthy baby.

If you must watch your weight, be sure to read tomorrow's article.

Lana Turner, now playing in "Somewhere I'll Find You" is the picture of freshness and daintiness that every woman wants to be. In the accompanying article two aids to summer daintiness and comfort are suggested, and they are available this week at a "bargain" price.

A Midsummer Bargain In Cologne and Bath Powder

By Winifred Ware.

This morning the blood of my one Scotch ancestor became dominant and I went out looking for a bargain. This is what I found: A nice, big box of bath powder for $1.00, and a bottle of cologne to match for 50 cents. I suppose I don't need to tell you how cooling it is to dash a bit of cologne over your body when you're sweltering hot, and how dainty and utterly clean you feel when after the bath you dust a bath powder lavishly on your feet, under arms and over the body areas that become moist and uncomfortable in hot weather. And I suppose you need not be reminded that September is a summer month in the south, and you'll need your "coolers" right through until October.

The bath powder and cologne, both for a mere $1.50, are in a delicate fragrance which will not interfere with your perfume which you may want to use, too. The odor is called "Early Iris" and is quite as fragile as the orchid-like blossoms whose name it bears. The powder has a "deodorizing" base, which means that while it does not take the place of a deodorant cream it does have deodorizing properties. This dainty two-some is on sale this week. And if you want to know the full name and where they may be bought call Winifred Ware, WA. 6565, or write in care of The Constitution, enclosing a self-addressed stamped envelope for reply.

Today's Charm Tip

To youth should belong such gayeties as those hair-bow substitutes for hats too oft seen perched atop a face much too advanced in years, care and suffering to tempt fate with their wearing.

WIPE WAXED LINOLEUM.

Kitchen linoleum that has been waxed can be kept clean by wiping it daily with a cloth wrung out in cool, soapy water. Dry the floor with a clean scrub cloth or other soft material. Scrubbing should be reserved for the times when it is necessary to apply a fresh coat of wax. Frequency of re-waxing depends upon the amount of traffic that crosses the floor and the between-care given the linoleum.

Mary Martin Contradicts Garbo; She Doesn't Want To Be Alone

By Harold Heffernan.

If Hollywood were to set up an opposite to Greta Garbo, the choice would almost certainly fall to Mary Martin. Unlike Garbo, who comes from Sweden, Mary Martin, who comes from the great big state of Texas, doesn't "want to be alone."

She is never happier than when surrounded by people, almost any kind of people. On picture sets and around radio stations, she is always the center of a conversational group. She entertains a lot and her parties are real parties. They are carefully planned and everyone always has a good time.

She plans these parties down to the most minute details. The other day she gave a shower for a bride-to-be who is moving from Hollywood to Washington. The cake was beautifully decorated with California oranges and orange blossoms on one side, and an arrow pointing to the other side where Washington cherry blossoms and cherries were embossed. Few hostesses go to all that trouble, but Mary gets a kick out of it.

No Hollywood star is more ambitious. She is working all the time to improve her talents. When she left the studio last year to have a baby, she continued taking piano, voice and dramatic lessons six days a week until a few weeks before little Mary arrived.

Mary is not selfish, as are so many ambitious people. She is often helping others, particularly young singers and dancers trying to get a start. She loaned her own voice coach and her own arrangements to Virginia Dale when Miss Dale was trying out for an important role in a picture. She got it as a result of Mary's help.

Mary is definitely a career girl. Her years of struggle to get recognition, and her months of unwarded efforts in Hollywood have taught her the price of fame, and she's going to keep up on top as long as she can, now that she's there.

A native of Weatherford, Texas, Mary quit school early to try a career. She taught dancing in Weatherford and came to Hollywood regularly to learn new steps. Finally, she came to try and crash the movies. Not a tumble did she get. It wasn't until a couple of years later when she scored her big success in the Broadway play, "Leave It to Me," singing "My Heart Belongs to Daddy" while she slyly removed most of her clothing, that she got movie offers.

Mary's favorite songs are lullabies. Her next record album will be a series of these songs. Her favorite is a little known one, "I'll Aboard for Blanket Bay." She hopes that if readers of this article know the titles of any old lullabies they will mail them to her, care of the Paramount Studio, Hollywood.

Texas Mary is extremely clothes-conscious. She doesn't always dress according to vogue and there's a reason for this. She says:

"I found out on camp tours and on my trip to Mexico that people expect movie stars to look like movie stars. I'm always going to try not to disappoint them."

If Mary has one passion in life, it's cutting hair. She is always cutting at her own, and cutting other people's hair. She wears hers extremely short for that reason. She thinks she'd like to be a hairdresser.

On the other hand, she intends that her daughter Mary shall have long hair. "Down to her knees if possible," says Mary.

Mary's boy, Larry, is nine and is a youngster of beautiful behavior. He was raised mostly by Mary's mother.

She is married to Richard Haliday, a story agent who followed her from New York because she came to Hollywood. He continued his courtship here and they were married in a sudden elopement, decided upon at 2 o'clock in the morning. Mary makes decisions like that.

Mary, who got into pictures by doing a singing strip-tease, was kept "under wraps" by Paramount in her first picture, in "Kiss the Boys Goodbye," she did a strip routine on a springboard, ending up in a bathing suit—after many arguments with the film censors.

In her next picture, "Happy Go Lucky," she really unveils her very beautiful chassis. Mary has pretty legs, among the prettiest in Hollywood.

Mother Guards Baby's Health By Watching Her Own Diet

By Ida Jean Kain.

If you are going to have a baby, what you want more than anything else is to give him the best possible start in life. The time to do this is the nine months before he is born.

Your diet then is all-important to the health of your baby. Let me tell you about a study of 380 mothers-to-be, all from the low-income bracket, and all on poor diets—although no worse than many an expectant mother follows. So that the exact effect of the diet could be studied, the mothers were divided into two groups. One-half the mothers were allowed to continue their usual fare. The other half received supplementary protective foods—milk, eggs, oranges, tomatoes, cheese, wheat germ and cod liver oil.

By the time the babies were six months old, anybody could point out the ones whose mothers had been on the good diet. All these babies were given the same care and attention from birth. But those whose mothers were better fed were healthier. They were the ones who got the best possible start in life.

Vitamin B Complex Improves the Heart

By Dr. William Brady.

Medical literature is full of articles on the value of the precise "indications" for (reasons for giving) and the best-preparations of the drug digitalis, with imposing scientific studies of the pharmacologic action of digitalis and inferences drawn from laboratory or experimental observations for application in human practice.

To the layman with a little knowledge, and I fear to some physicians, too, the chief value of digitalis is the use of the medicine as a heart "tonic." A tonic is anything that improves or restores enfeebled function or increases tone or vigor.

I can comprehend how a light touch of the whip now and then may make your horse work better for an hour or two, but I comprehend as well how constant or persistent whipping of the horse would presently bring exhaustion. The whip does not add any energy or strength, but merely stimulates or excites the horse to put forth more energy for a while. Of course this must be at the expense of whatever reserve power the horse may have. If you keep drawing on the reserve power you are bound to bring exhaustion. That is plain common sense, good physiology, sound physics.

"Therapeutically," says Bastedo, in this textbook Materia Medica, Pharmacology and Therapeutics (Saunders, '38) "digitalis enables the damaged heart to do more work with the same expenditure of energy." But this authority does not explain how this anomaly of physics is achieved by digitalis.

Every beat of the heart involves expenditure of energy, and the amount of energy expended varies with the force and the rapidity of the heart beat. Digitalis and some other drugs may temporarily increase or decrease the rate and force of the heart beat, but hardly without a corresponding increase or decrease in the amount of energy expended.

It is a mistake to imagine digitalis cures heart disease. The medicine only modifies the action of the heart. It may slow a too rapid heart or make more regular an irregular heart. Nearly all authorities believe it "improves the tone and contractile power of the ventricular muscle"—the muscle of the heart wall which pumps the blood out into the arteries. If that means temporarily, I can understand it. But for more lasting effect I'd put more faith in an optimal daily ration of vitamin B complex or even a good daily ration of synthetic B-1 (thiamin) alone than would in the prolonged or constant use of digitalis. In any case where digitalis is used for any length of time it can do no harm, may do much good, to supplement the diet with an optimal daily ration of vitamin B complex, and another really does improve tone, contractility and vigor of the heart—not in a few hours but after a few weeks.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

The Calcium Shortage.

Enclosed you will find a stamped envelope bearing my address. Please send me the pamphlets "The Calcium Shortage" and "So You Have Indigestion?"—(L. G.)

Ans.—Calcium shortage pamphlet is on the way. "So You Have Indigestion?" is a booklet for copy inclose 10 cents and stamped self-addressed envelope.

Wine.

Is it harmful for a person to drink a cupful of port wine every day? The wine contains 20 per cent of alcohol by volume. The person I refer to has taken a cup three years to make new blood.—(Mrs. F. G.)

Ans.—It will not make new blood if she drinks it every day for life. No alcoholic beverage can compare with fresh fruit juice drinks for making new blood.

Foreign Substance.

Does taking mineral oil either the clear oil or an emulsion of it interfere in any way with assimilation of vitamins or other essentials of good nutrition?—(J. F. B.)

Ans.—Yes.

Choroiditis.

In diagnosing Choroiditis is it necessary for the oculist to use X-rays? Can the average oculist diagnose this trouble?—(E. A.)

Ans.—No. Any eye physician can diagnose it by ophthalmoscopic examination of the fundus of the eye.

Raw Meat.

Members of my family will not eat raw chopped meat, raw steak or roast beef, under the impression that rare or underdone beef may cause tapeworm. I maintain that if the meat is government inspected this cannot happen. (Mrs. G. H.)

Answer.—Unsafe to eat even government inspected meat raw. Tapeworm larvae in beef are easily overlooked by an inspector. Eating pork, ham or underdone raw or underdone, is still more dangerous—that way trichinosis may be contracted, and trichinosis is sometimes fatal. Always make sure to cook meat thoroughly, avoid rare or underdone meat. Cooking destroys either tapeworm larvae or trichina larvae if any present in the beef or pork. Much meat in local markets everywhere is not government inspected.

Nazi Who Tipped Off Attack on Russia Killed at Front

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(AP)—The death of Professor Karl Boemer, 42, German propaganda ministry official who fell into disgrace when he was accused and convicted of tipping off Germany's intention to invade Russia last year, was announced tonight by the Berlin radio with a laudatory comment that "his work will not be forgotten."

The German broadcast said that Professor Boemer, for a number of years chief of the foreign press section of the Nazi ministry of propaganda, died in a Cracow hospital of wounds received in the fighting around Kharkov, on the Russian front. He was a first lieutenant in the German armed forces at the end.

Here is the Berlin radio's comment on the death of the one-time trusted assistant of propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels.

"With Professor Boemer the German press lost an efficient journalist and the newspaper science loses an excellent expert. For four years Professor Boemer worked in a prominent and responsible position in the press department of the Reich government and in the Reich ministry of propaganda and public enlightenment. His name and his work will not be forgotten."

Karl Boemer died under conviction of having been unfaithful to a trust.

He had been found guilty by the dreaded Peoples' Court on a charge of having been "indiscreet" in discussing Hitler's war plans with foreigners. Specifically, the charge was that he had tipped off the German intention to attack Russia in June, 1941.

Sentenced to prison, he served about eight months, and then was released by Hitler on condition he go to the eastern front as a common soldier. He chose to go, and reports from Rome indicate he had been promoted to the rank of lieutenant of infantry before he was wounded mortally.

Professor Boemer "interpreted" Germany to the world for Dr. Goebbels. As chief of the foreign press section of the propaganda ministry he dealt with foreign correspondents assigned to Berlin, tried to meet their requirements and assumed the role of chief apologist for Hitler.

He had toured the United States and Mexico, and before the war was active in a number of movements aiming to improve German-English relations.

His association with foreigners had been "internationally minded" on several occasions brought him into conflict with sternly nationalist Nazis. And his "indiscretion" brought about his political and official downfall.

Remarks which the Peoples' Court regarded improper were made by Boemer at a reception at the Bulgarian legation in Berlin in the spring of 1941. Germany at that time was still giving lip service to its treaty of nonaggression with Russia. But something Boemer said caused a number of diplomats to wonder, and to send coded reports to their capitals.

The next day the German foreign office was embarrassed extremely by queries from many sources and, although the plans for the invasion of Russia were already well under way, Berlin had to assure many questioners that German-Russian relations remained on the friendliest basis.

The axe fell promptly on Boemer. Gestapo agents took him from his office, in the presence of several correspondents, immediately after a press conference. For many weeks there was no explanation of Boemer's protracted absence. Then came the trial on charges for which the penalty might have been death, imprisonment and finally the reprieve from Hitler—given on condition he "go and fight in the war" about which he "had tattled."

Norma Shearer And Young Ski Tutor Are Wed

Family and Few Close Friends Witness Ceremony.

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Aug. 23. (AP)—A romance begun four years ago when they met at a Sun Valley, Idaho, vacation resort where he was a professional ski instructor, culminated in a quiet church wedding today for Norma Shearer, former screen actress, and Martin Arrouge.

The ceremony, which unite the 36-year-old widow of Irving Thalberg, movie producer who died six years ago, in a redneck with the sportsman eight years her junior, was officiated by Father John J. O'Donnell at the Church of the Good Shepherd.

Miss Shearer's two children by her first marriage, Irving Thalberg Jr., 11, and Katherine Thalberg, 8, and a few close family friends of the couple attended the wedding.

Mrs. Sylvia Fairbanks, widow of screen actor Douglas Fairbanks Sr., flew here from New York to be matron of honor. Otto Lang, ski instructor and old friend of the groom, was best man.

The bride wore a flowered print gown with draped sash to match. Her wedding ring was of plain gold which covered the platinum band which she wore for nine years as Mrs. Thalberg.

In a pre-nuptial agreement by the couple, Arrouge waived all rights to Miss Shearer's community property from her late husband's estate, saying he wanted it known he was marrying her for love and not her money.

Miss Shearer estimated the estate at $1,500,000 and said it has been kept in a trust for the support of her and her two children.

The couple plan to honeymoon at the nearby Santa Monica home of the bride. Arrouge said he expects to enter the Army soon.

Two Bombers Blast Emden in Surprise Raid

Hits Are Scored Among Buildings in Dock Area.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Two of the RAF's Wellington bombers sprang a surprise attack on the German port and shipbuilding center of Emden today, scoring hits among buildings in the dock area.

The air ministry, announcing the raid, said the two bombers took Emden's defenders by surprise, striking through the clouds at 4,000 feet during their explosives and disappearing in the clouds again.

Returning home one Wellington exchanged fire with a Messerschmitt 109 fighter. The Wellington's rear gunner got in a long burst in the last of the nine attacks by the fighter and saw fragments break off the enemy plane. Then the clouds closed in and nothing further was seen of the Messerschmitt.

Bombs were dropped on a place on the south coast of England this afternoon and last night, a communiqué said, bombs fell at widely separated points in eastern England and the East Midlands. Two Nazi planes were destroyed.

Nelson suggested the working schedule of Sparling and Fogelson was a little too strenuous for some of the younger workers to maintain, even though you two gentlemen seem to thrive on it."

The Sparling-Fogelsoner "labor-management committee" makes flanges used on wooden pipes that are installed in large defense plants.

Sparling ran the tiny shop by himself before the war, making pulleys and doing odd jobs repairing machinery. His "expansion" for war production consisted of hiring Fogelsoner, who had been in the habit of spending much time in the shop anyway.

Labor-management relations have been "ideal," according to Sparling. When they need money, he explained, he goes to the pipe company which uses their flanges to "take out what we need for grub and living expenses and buy bonds with what's left."

Boss, 60, Helper, 79, Work 15 Hours Day, Win WPB Poster

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—(AP) The two-man production staff of a plant at Bay City, Mich.—a 60-year-old employer and his 79-year-old employee—received a large American Flag poster, official recognition as a labor-management production drive committee, and a letter from Donald M. Nelson to-day commending their efforts.

Jake Sparling wrote President Roosevelt that he and Percy Fogelsoner, his entire "staff," had been working an average of 15 hours a day, seven days a week, and had made 18,000 steel flanges for war machinery.

Sparling said "the old gent and myself" would like a pennant.

Mr. Roosevelt sent the letter to Nelson, chairman of the War Production Board, who not only sent a large American Flag poster surmounting the inscription "Give It Your Best," but ordered Sparling's name to lead all the rest of the plants formally entered in the war production drive "WW" recognition of the example the entire working

'Washed Out' Flyer Is Hero Of Sky Battle

Fortress Bombardier Takes Controls in North Sea Victory.

WITH THE UNITED STATES BOMBER COMMAND IN BRITAIN, Aug. 23.—(P)—A slight young Florida bombardier who "washed out of flying school" and a half-conscious pilot with his arm nearly torn off emerged as the heroes today of the great North sea sky battle which saw American Flying Fortresses shoot down or damage 12 German fighters although outnumbered five to one.

Stubble-bearded airmen who had not been to bed for 36 hours told how the gravely wounded pilot and the bombardier who had never flown a Fortress before brought the big ship back safely after Nazi bullets had riddled two of the four motors and killed the co-pilot.

A re-check of the crews' reports of the attacks showed four of nine Fortresses on the sortie had done all the fighting in the battle against about 25 Focke-Wulf 190's and Messerschmitt 109's. They shot down three confirmed and heavily damaged at least one more instead of the six originally reported damaged or destroyed.

Five other Fortresses in the leading wing flight had not been attacked.

"Heard a Thud."

The thin, lanned bombardier, Second Lieutenant Stuart Sconiers, 26, of De Funak Springs, Fla., with eyes bloodshot from loss of sleep and nervous tension, reported on the terrific fight of the plane, "Johnny Reb," in this manner:

"We were in the tail end formation when we were jumped by about 25 Focke-Wulf 190's and Messerschmitt 109's at over 20,000 feet. They set up a decoy out to our right. I was lying in wait to nose of the ship shooting at that when over the intercommunicating system I heard the waist gunner shout: 'Here come three more from above.'"

"I heard a thud in the pilot's cabin and heard the pilot grunt and ask me to come up."

Never Wavered.

The Fortress never wavered from its course, although it lagged behind the formation a little, but when Sconiers entered the cabin he found the pilot covered with blood. His eyes were glazed with pain and his arm half torn off by the cannon shot which had killed the co-pilot.

(Casualty regulations forbid release of the names of the pilot and the co-pilot.)

"I dragged the body of the co-pilot from his seat. It was a terrific job as I had no oxygen mask."

"I then took his place. The pilot's oxygen mask had been ripped away and he was fighting for breath. He motioned me to take the ship down to 5,000 feet. I never had flown a Fortress before, having been washed out of flying school and coming back as a bombardier. But some way we got down."

When the rest of the crew reached the ground they heard for the first time that the co-pilot had been killed and the pilot gravely wounded.

Getting The Range at Fort Mac

Any soldier who can perform for the public—anything from playing the harmonica to tying himself in a knot—is given a chance to show his comrades-in-arms what he can do when Fort McPherson's reception center holds "amateur night" each Saturday.

As part of the post's regular recreation program, amateur contests are held weekly.

Most of the contestants are hill-billy musicians, but not all. Occasionally some soldier-musician will give a rendition of Beethoven or Debussy. And the show has had all kinds of dancers, imitators, and acrobats, including recently a fire-eater who became nervous and burned himself for the first time in his stage career.

Atlanta Theater Guild, under direction of Dr. Frank Belyeu, will give a stage show for men at the Fort McPherson reception center at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow night in the reception center recreation hall.

Reservations for the week end at the Fort McPherson guest house were heavier than they have been in several weeks, according to Mrs. Dorothy Barnett, hostess Army Service Club. Visitors came from several Georgia cities as well as out of state.

The guest house is operated by the Army Service Club for enlisted men and their visitors, affording them lodgings at Fort McPherson for a very small charge.

50-Cent Whisky To Be Offered By State Store in Alabama

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Aug. 23. (P)—"Recaptured" state-store whisky seized as contraband will be resold at "bargain prices" by the State Alcoholic Beverage Control Board in Montgomery.

Under a new regulation, the contraband whisky will be sold through a designated store here. In all counties where state-stamped liquor has been condemned by court order or within 10 days after a defendant's conviction it must be shipped prepaid by the court clerk to Montgomery.

The new regulation also sets up a scale of prices: 25 cents a pint and 50 cents a quart for all state-store "recaptured" whisky, and from five cents a pint to 50 cents a gallon for wine. The board will pay one cent per bottle for all prohibited liquors, other than those bought through state stores, which are seized in dry counties.

"This price (one cent) being a reasonable value as determined by the board inasmuch as there is no way of determining the contents of such beverages when not sold by or through state liquor stores," the board explained.

The new regulation, the board pointed out, is in conformity with Sections 227 and 242, Title 29, of the 1940 code, and the supreme court's decision in the case of Lovett vs. State, Vol. 6, 2d Series, Southern Reporter.

11 o'clock this morning at Spring Hill with Dr. M. A. Cooper and Dr. Louie D. Newton officiating.

Pallbearers include: C. F. Spauld, Charles H. Hazelwood, I. N. Sheffield Sr., A. R. Kirby, Burton N. Graham and J. T. Hawthorne.

"Buy More War Bonds Now--Head Off Inflation!"

EVERY "runaway inflation" in history has had the same prime cause: an enormous sudden increase in the money being used by a people.

Such a swift increase in our own nation's money-supply is now taking place—invisibly! And it is we—tens of millions of patriotic citizens—who are responsible for most of that increase.

By failing to buy War Savings Bonds, with money we can spare for that purpose, we are continually forcing the United States Treasury to create new money with which to pay its war bills.

Take out $18.75 from your wallet or handbag or bureau drawer. Last week or last month you earned that much (no doubt far more) over and above what you need to live upon. With it you could have bought a War Savings Bond that would mature at $25. By failing to do so you forced the Federal Government to create exactly $18.75 of new money to pay war bills—bills which could have been paid with that money you now hold gingerly in your hand.

Month after month you keep forcing the government to create new money by this sort of negligence. Simultaneously tens of millions of others are guilty of the same destructive procrastination.

We will never allow ourselves to be defeated in the military war in which we are engaged. But we can very easily be defeated in our internal war against inflation.

That war can be lost—it is now being lost—by our own multitudinous delinquencies with regard to War Savings Bonds.

The sober ultimate truth is that only our personal savings can now save our civilization—the savings of tens of millions of little people all garnered together and thrown into this breach. If this is not done voluntarily, it must be forced—so clear and great is the need.

Free and willing lending not only is in accord with our instincts as a people, it is better for a practical reason. It is probable that far more can be obtained by the government from intelligent willing lenders than from passive, uninformed, regimented ones, and the most important thing is to get every dollar possible.

The more the government gets—either in taxes or individual loans or through its own economies—the less new money it will have to create in order to pay its war bills. It will have to create some; we must all keep that "some" to the very lowest possible figure.

Every citizen who realizes this basic truth, and henceforth acts upon it without procrastination, will be able to sleep of nights serene in his conscience that he is doing the minimum he can to help save the nation from unimaginable disaster. You must act now!
